

Triggerman For Black Legion Says He Will Plead Guilty To Murder

Dayton Dean Claims Other 12 Co-Defendants are Lying—Blames Lies for Inciting Him to Murder Poole.

"GUN CRAZY"

"Colonel" Harvey Davis of Black Legion Says Dean is "Liar" and "Gun Crazy Lunatic."

Detroit, June 4 (AP)—Dayton Dean, the Black Legion's "triggerman," announced today, "I am going to plead guilty" to the kidnapping and murder of Charles A. Poole "as soon as they will let me."

Dean maintained his 12 co-defendants had recited "nothing but a pack of lies," but Harvey Davis, the man Dean named as the Black Legion "Colonel" who gave the order to kill Poole, denounced him as a "gun crazy lunatic."

Davis, enraged by Dean's story in court Wednesday of how he fired eight bullets into Poole's body as the young WPA worker knelt defenseless before a mob of Black Legion men, hurled a volley of counter charges at the "executioner," but admitted that he was present when Poole was put to death in "punishment" for a false charge of wife beating.

Davis charged, among other things, that Dean killed Poole without the sanction of the others in the mob, and that Dean "tricked" him into joining the Legion.

Only a "Talk"

Davis said he was a "corporal," not a "colonel," in the terrorist organization, and that "We only took Poole out there to talk to him about beating his wife and maybe scare him out of it."

Davis said he didn't know that Dean and Ervin D. Lee had guns with them when they started with Poole on the "one way ride."

"We were passing the bottle around, when we heard shots coming from the other car," Davis said. "We ran over and there was Poole lying on the ground and Dean standing over him, guns in his hands. I said: 'Now why did you shoot him?' Dean replied: 'Oh, what's the use of fooling around with a—' like that.' Dean was just a gun crazy lunatic."

"They led me from the beginning," he said. "They told me that fellow had beaten his wife. They said her baby might die. Lies, nothing but lies," Dean said.

"I Told the Truth"

"I'm sorry for what I did, but it won't do any good. I have nothing to hide. I told the truth and I'm glad I did."

Dean was asked if he ever had shot anyone else.

"No, I didn't," he replied, and then as Detective Sergeant John Harvill and Detective Charles Meehan looked at him searchingly, he said: "I'll take that back. When I was in the Navy some years back there was a race riot in Washington. There were four of us in a patrol and the officer said to shoot. We shot."

With the examination of the 13 in adjournment until next Monday, Circuit Judge James E. Chenot opened a state grand jury investigation here into a reign of terror ascribed to the Black Legion.

Day Pleads Self Defense

Joliet, Ill., June 4 (AP)—Convict James Day, 21, on trial for the slaying of Richard Loeb, was pictured by defense counsel in closing arguments today as within his rights when he slashed the Chicago "thrill slayer" to death with a razor in a Stateville Prison shower room more than four months ago. Day was charged with inflicting 53 razor slashes on the body of Loeb, partner of Nathan Leopold in the 1934 slaying of Bobby Franks. Pleading self defense, Day claimed the slaying climaxed more than 14 months of "hounding" by Loeb with alleged demands that Day submit to perverted proposals.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns Dies Suddenly of Stroke Following Heart Attack

National Leaders of Both Parties Express Sorrow and Shock as Tennessee Farm Boy Who Became U. S. Speaker Dies at 67 Years of Age—Hard Work During Closing Hours of Legislative Session Blamed for Fatal Attack.

Death Takes Speaker

JOSEPH W. BYRNS

Washington, June 4 (AP)—Cut down at the height of his career by a swift and lethal illness, Speaker Joseph Wellington Byrns of the House of Representatives died shortly after midnight today in a room in a hushed hotel while leaders of all parties expressed shock and grief.

A totally unexpected heart attack, followed by a cerebral hemorrhage, brought death at 12:15 a. m., e. s. t. today to the Tennessee farm boy who rose to wield the speaker's gavel during a period in which much history was made. He would have been 67 years old next July 20.

The passing of this tall and rangy pillar of his party in the turbulent hours of hard fighting between the New Deal and its foes plunged the legislative situation into further uncertainty. Almost until the hour he was stricken, Byrns had labored at a tremendous pace to pass the program through Congress swiftly so the session could end on Saturday if possible.

Blame Hard Work

Friends believed the hard work he insisted on doing may have hastened the fatal attack.

Apparently in good health in mid-afternoon yesterday, Byrns, representative from Tennessee, suffered a heart attack at 5:30 p. m., and a cerebral hemorrhage at 11 p. m. He died an hour and a quarter later, without regaining consciousness.

The shaggy-browed leader, who, upon his death had served 26 years in Congress, long had had an eye on the speakership, the role played so vigorously by such figures as Champ Clark, Uncle Joe Cannon and Nicholas Longworth.

When on January 3, 1935, he stepped into the speakership from the majority leadership to which he had raised by the Democratic victory of 1932, there lay behind him a long record of service on the house appropriations committee.

He had been chairman of the subcommittee whose duty it was to push through the chamber the huge appropriations during the World War. Besides being a skilled parliamentarian, he had spent years studying the dull but vital figures that tell the fiscal story of the government.

Chairman Under Hoover

As the ranking minority member of the committee when the Republicans regained power after the war, he worked equally as hard. He became chairman again when the Democrats organized the house during the latter part of President Hoover's administration.

In his personal appearance Byrns easily fitted into the role of speaker. He was almost six feet, two inches tall, and rugged of countenance. His eyes were friendly and his southern voice soft and rolling. His even baritone was said to have calmed tempers which swirled about his office.

Byrns became ill in 1933 shortly after laying campaign plans to capture his party's nomination for United States Senator. The illness forced him to quit, but he later won renomination for the house from his old "Hermitage District," which took its name from the homestead of Andrew Jackson. He was reelected and remained in the house until his death.

Since the start of the session, one of the most momentous in recent times, Byrns worked diligently toward early adjournment. At the opening January 2, he said he wanted Congress to "quit" at the earliest possible date consistent with full and fair consideration of legislation.

Power as speaker of the national House of Representatives came to Joseph W. Byrns when the 74th Congress convened January 3, 1935. Back of him was a full quarter century as a member of the House from the "Hermitage district" of Tennessee, a tenure which saw him through a dozen successful political campaigns and which brought him chairmanship of the House appropriations committee, leadership of the Democratic majority and head of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

"Uncle Joe" to his constituents, he was a "shrewd politician," a masterful parliamentary strategist and a fair-minded chairman and presiding officer whose personal qualities won praise from political opponents.

He was a lawyer by profession, an avid reader of history, biography and detective stories and a seaman whenever a let-up in his work allowed him to indulge in that pastime. He liked to travel by airplane.

Marked By Father's Job

Close to 6 feet, 2 inches tall, he was rangy and soft-spoken. Rugged features were accentuated by beaming, shaggy eyebrows that lent themselves to caricature. The eyebrows were the result of a practical joke played on Byrns in his youth when he went to sleep in a barber's chair after asking for "a clean shave." The razor cutter carried out the request to the letter. The eyebrows grew out bushy and, as Byrns' son said in later years, "marked him for life."

Turmoil In France As Strike Spreads, Some Workers Make Peace

Food Shortage in Paris Averted as Paris Central Markets Yield to Demands of Workers, But Housewives Stock Up.

400,000 ON STRIKE

Estimate Nearly Half Million Protesting Leftist Government of Leon Blum by "Folded Arms."

(Copyright, 1936, By Associated Press)

Paris, June 4—Employers at the Paris central markets yielded to the demands of workers today, apparently averting a threatened food shortage just as the Socialist Leon Blum moved to assume the government of France.

Even as the workers gained their demands, housewives in various sections of Paris were reported laying in heavier supplies of food for fear the source would be cut off.

Striking ice and refrigerator plant workers, whose walkout had impeded Paris meat and milk stores, settled their dispute with operators, further allaying fears of a metropolitan famine.

However, the strikes spread to other branches of industry, affecting newspapers, and there were estimates that 400,000 workers still were in a status of "folded arms."

Laborers building air raid shelters at police headquarters quit and tried to stay in the shelters, but police routed them summarily.

Capital Flies to England

A flight of capital into British pounds was reported by bankers. Sterling hit one of the highest quotations in many months. At noon, the pound was quoted at 76.50 francs, as compared to 75.80 a week ago.

(The franc also slumped at London, carrying the American dollar down with it.)

French banking circles reported a steady flow of gold to Britain, with additional quantities of the precious metal earmarked by the Bank of France for British banks.

Financial experts declared the strikes, the change of French government, and the devaluationist movement in the Netherlands were reacting against all gold currencies.

War Industries

Further spread of the strike movement into the war industries sent 10,000 workers into "folded arms" idleness at a Renault Ordnance plant. A thousand miners occupied workings in the Anzin coal region, largest in the nation.

Despite fears that public service and transportation services might be paralyzed, these continued normal for the time being.

L'Humanite, the Communist newspaper, estimated there were 200,000 on strike in the Paris area and 200,000 more elsewhere in France.

Union leaders announced a united drive for "greater force and efficacy of control and direction of the strike movement."

As the soft-spoken Blum made ready to diagnose the nation's labor and financial ills at the inaugural of his regime, the right wing of the Chamber of Deputies united on a policy of outright obstruction to his leftist government.

This policy was decided upon after the dominant people's front had refused the rightists' prorata representation among chamber officials.

A then the Chamber of Deputies convened at 2:30 p. m. the benches reserved for government adherents were empty.

Cries "Anarchy"

Roger Salengro, prospective Socialist minister of the interior, called the strike "anarchy" in opposition to Communist claims it was "a struggle for bread."

The newspaper Le Matin, a rightist publication, warned the situation was "too serious" for premature criticism of the new (prospective) government while asserting the treasury was "dangerously empty."

Another newspaper, the Echo de Paris, placed the number of workers on strike at half-a-million.

Second Child at 96

New Bern, N. C., June 4 (AP)—George Isaac Hughes, the 96-year-old Confederate veteran who amazed the medical world when he became a father 17 months ago, was all smiles again today. "It looks like we might raise a pretty big family after all," Hughes commented. A second child, a girl, was born yesterday to the couple so widely separated in years.

Conference Recommends That No Further Voluntary Training Schools for Policemen Be Opened Under Institute Auspices.

TAX PROBLEMS

The Resolutions Offered and Which Were Passed By The Conference at Today's Session.

The State Mayors' Conference this morning adopted all seven resolutions that were introduced at the Wednesday afternoon session of the conference. One of the resolutions adopted was that the conference recommend to the Municipal Training Institute of New York State that no further voluntary training schools for policemen be operated under the Institute auspices. The resolution came following such a recommendation by President Wendell E. Phillips of Port Jervis in his annual report to the conference.

The resolution further provided that the conference abandon its efforts to have the state provide recruit police training "until the local police departments of the state can agree on a satisfactory plan."

Another of the seven resolutions handed the committee for consideration was one requesting the State Tax Commission to join with the conference in making a study of tax lien foreclosure procedure for the purpose of recommending to the State Legislature some less expensive and simpler method.

A resolution was also offered that the conference petition the Legislature to approve a constitutional amendment which would deprive the state of power to force municipalities by mandatory laws and regulations to increase local expenses payable by the real estate tax. Another resolution called for authority to create a joint Legislative Committee or Commission to study real property tax exemptions.

The matter of tax exemptions on real property has been an increasing problem for years and in many towns and counties it now represents a serious problem as additional real property is removed from the tax roll.

Other resolutions handed the committee for consideration deal with a study for permanent registration system in other states with the idea of recommending some plan to New York state municipalities. Another calls for an educational program by cities, villages and towns to bring to the attention of the public the serious hazards of traffic and to prevent the increased number of accidents. One resolution calls for an expression of appreciation of the opportunity afforded by radio station WGY for use of the station for municipal government educational programs such as have been broadcast for the past seven years.

The resolutions offered and which will be acted upon by the Resolutions Committee and then submitted to the conference for action are:

Police Training.

Whereas, since 1928 the Advisory Council on Police Training, representing the New York State Association of Mayors and other Municipal Officials, the New York State Association of Chiefs of Police and the Division of State Police, has operated 108 zone police training schools for all city and village police and has led the country in the development of a practical and effective program of state-wide police training, and whereas, more than 12,000 city and village policemen have attended these schools, indicating that the present personnel of local police departments has been well grounded in the fundamentals of police work, and

Whereas, in view of this condition the Advisory Council on Police Training decided in 1934 that the primary future need in police training was the instruction of new policemen only, numbering 6,000 a year the body was found to be about 200, exclusive of New York City, Buffalo and Rochester, and office was notified and Coroner Leon D. DuBois of New Paltz called.

Whereas, the council was unanimously of the opinion that such instruction to be effective must be mandatory and under the supervision of a state body, the majority of which would be municipal representatives, and

Whereas, in conformity with this view a bill was introduced in the 1935 legislative session providing for mandatory training of new policemen under a board composed of state and municipal police executives and authorities, and

Whereas, this plan was not approved by the Legislature owing to the opposition of some patrolmen members of the New York State Police conference who would not be affected by its provisions and who had previously approved it, and to dissension views held by a few members of the New York State Association of Chiefs of Police, and

Whereas, the mayors' conference is convinced that it has gone as far as it can in the voluntary training of its constituent city and state action is essential to provide adequate compulsory training for the two hun-

Fire Chiefs Open 30th Annual Session at Elks' Club on Wednesday

At the Elks' Club at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Chief Michael J. Fleming of Albany, president of the New York State Fire Chiefs' Association, opened the 30th annual session, with 40 members present.

Mayor Conrad J. Helselman of this city, introduced by Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy as a chief executive behind the department to the last ditch, Mayor Helselman in his address of welcome to the chiefs said he always considered the fire department perhaps the most important unit in municipal life, one carrying the greatest responsibility and a department always ready to carry out all work to the proper completion. The mayor praised Chief Murphy as an excellent executive, a strict disciplinarian and a leader loved by his men.

Both Fire Chief Murphy and Mayor Helselman outlined the program of entertainment scheduled for the chiefs and their wives and hoped that both men and women guests would find Kingston true to its reputation for fine, old Colonial hospitality.

Chief Fleming made an appropriate response in behalf of the members of the association.

The minutes of the 29th annual session were adopted as printed. With no further business to transact, the convention adjourned until this morning at 10 o'clock at the Elks' Club.

"STRAWBERRIES ARE SUCH BARGAINS NOW... I WISH I HAD BETTER LUCK WITH JAMS AND JELLIES!"

"USE CERTO, AND THEY'LL BE PERFECT! YOU'LL GET HALF AGAIN MORE GLASSES TOO!"

EASY RECIPE FOR STRAWBERRY JAM

1 cup (2 pounds) prepared fruit
7 cups (13 pounds) sugar
1/2 bottle Certo

To prepare fruit, wash about 2 quarts fully ripe berries or crush completely, one layer at a time so that each berry is reduced to a pulp.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large bottle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over bottom fire. Stir constantly below and while boiling. Boil turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly. Pour into hot jars at once. Pour quickly. 10 glasses (8 fluid oz. each).

FREE RECIPE BOOK

Underneath the label on every Certo bottle is a book of tested recipes for jams and jellies... 39 in all, because different fruits require different handling. Be sure to follow each recipe exactly.

CERTO

Jams and Jellies have twice the Flavor made this easy way!

SO hurry! Take advantage of your grocer's bargains... Buy strawberries right away and make up several batches of jam! With our easy recipe, you can make a batch in no time at all... in less than 15 minutes after your fruit is prepared!

The reason is that with Certo you boil such a short time... only 1/2 minute, for jellies; a little longer for jams.

WHY YOU GET BETTER FLAVOR

That short boil is the reason, too, that you get better flavor. All the flavor stays right in the fruit, instead of boiling away in steam, as it does by the old-fashioned method! Jams and jellies made with Certo have all the rich lusciousness of the fresh, ripe fruit! No "boiled-down" taste.

You get so much more from your fruit, too, when you use Certo. Half again more glasses than you would get by the old, long-boil way. That's because so much juice is lost, by wasteful long-boiling.

This wonderful Certo, that makes jam and jelly making so easy, is a product of General Foods.

BIG PRICE REDUCTION! YOU CAN NOW BUY CERTO AT A NEW LOW PRICE. SO CERTO JAMS AND JELLIES ARE MORE ECONOMICAL THAN EVER.

State Historian Addresses City and Village Clerks Here

Dr. Alexander C. Flick, State Historian and Director of Division of Archives and History, State Education Department, Addresses Clerks on "Preservation of Municipal Records"—President Raines Appoints Several Committees.

The joint session for city and village clerks, Wednesday afternoon at the Ulster County courthouse, was addressed by Dr. Alexander C. Flick, state historian and director of the division of archives and history, New York State Department of Education, Albany, on the subject, "Preservation of Municipal Records".

Dr. Flick impressed the clerks with the importance of the jobs as record keepers and archivists, whose duty it is to preserve historical facts so that they may be handed down to posterity. "The Empire State," he said, "is one of the most interesting, most romantic and important commonwealths in the union." Then he showed how necessary it is to keep records by tracing the history of the state from the time it belonged to the Indians.

Public records, private records, how to keep them and preserve them were touched on by Dr. Flick, whose talk followed the regular business session of the clerks, which was presided over by President Guy M. Raines, city clerk of Canandaigua.

President Raines appointed several committees: the nominating committee—Thomas Kennedy of Syracuse, James Matthews of Ithaca, John McDonald of Tuckahoe, George Richard of Niagara Falls, Walter Drucker of Kenmore; the resolutions committee—Joseph Murphy of Hastings and Edward H. Jackson of Scarsdale; the auditing committee—Richard Baird of Walden and Archibald Wands of Johnstown. The nominating committee will report at the Thursday session when election of officers is to be held.

President Raines spoke of the "wonderful cooperation the association received from Edgar J. Dempsey, Kingston's city clerk, in arranging a luncheon at Golden Rule Inn for Thursday afternoon." The time of the luncheon is 1 p. m., previous to the meeting of the mayors, who are invited to dine with the clerks. After praising Mr. Dempsey, the presiding officer read the menu. Then he commented, "Now isn't that an attractive bill of fare?" One humorous member of the group said, "What, no spinach?"

Clarence R. Nimmons of Johnson City, treasurer of the association, suggested a revision of the constitution and by-laws, declaring the present form out of date. He advised that the job of treasurer and secretary be combined and that a salary be paid for the position, something like 10 to 15 percent of the membership dues. "This would amount to only about $30 a year, not a large figure, but enough to pay a man for the time he spends keeping the organization going." Then Mr. Nimmons added, "I'm not out for the job of treasurer again. I've had enough of it." The speaker displayed a new book, which makes more systematic the method of keeping track of records. Although he refused the position at first, Mr. Nimmons had forced upon him the chairmanship of the committee for the revision of the constitution and by-laws.

A school is to be held during the convention for city and village clerks. An urge was made that all attend this school and ask any questions desired about city government.

Dr. Flick addressed the clerks as "Fellow archivists and historians. You are the record keepers, and your records become history. The Empire State is one of the most interesting, most romantic and important commonwealths in the Union."

Then the state historian traced the history of the state from the time it belonged to the Indians. "The Red Men knew not how to keep records in writing, but left a trace of their history in pictures," he said. The Dutch, he explained, for their 40 years of control left invaluable records, some of which are still in possession of record keepers in Albany, Kingston and New York, well preserved. The English in their 100 years of rule made records that are priceless, and may be found in the eastern part of the state mostly along the Hudson river. Dr. Flick said, "They were followed by our own American records for some 150 years, and many of the communities still have the records of their beginning as villages."

An informal discussion on public records and private records followed. Dr. Flick reminding the clerks that "one of your primary duties is to protect public records." "We are encouraging preservation of both public and private records because they are the gauge of civilization. When man emerges from savagery to civilization he wants to record the happenings of his own time." Then the doctor quoted a French saying, "No documents, no history." Records are the life of a people truly said, he explained, and history books only one writer's interpretation, pointing out that for a true story records are needed.

School records are among those most poorly kept, according to Dr. Flick, who said that because teachers in bygone days, and old trustees, considered the records personal property and kept them when they left their jobs instead of leaving them. "Arrangements should be made to have these records filed with city or village clerks," said Dr. Flick, "so they might be preserved."

"New York state ranks first as a record keeper," said the speaker, then told of the plan it has for visiting the various communities to inspect records. In the past 15 years methods have been improved in many communities because of the efforts made by the Division of Archives and History. He urged the clerks to see that their records are complete and up-to-date. And he cautioned against the enemies of records—the fire, floods, rodents, thieves and absent

Postponed Hearings Until July 15

Albany, June 4.—(Special)—The Public Service Commission has granted the request of residents in the vicinity of the Aeshokan station of the New York Central Railroad, to postpone until July 15, the hearings scheduled on the request of the railroad company to discontinue the services of an agent at the station between September 15 and May 15 of each year.

The request of the railroad company is being opposed by persons who use this station. It was explained to the commission by the opponents, most of whom are farmers, that it would be almost impossible for witnesses for their side to leave their work on the farms to come to Albany to testify at this time.

It has been determined by the commission, therefore, to conduct the hearings on the railroad company's petition at Olive Bridge, in the Odd Fellows' Hall. The first hearing will be July 15, at 1 o'clock.

Syracuse Orchestra Pleased Music Lovers

An appreciative audience enjoyed the concert last evening at the Municipal Auditorium rendered by the Syracuse WPA Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Andre Polak. The music lovers were treated to a delightful program of symphony selections.

The opening number on the program was the Overture Fantasia from "Romeo and Juliet" by Tchaikowsky.

The second selection was the Prelude to "Lohengrin" by Richard Wagner. This offering emphasized one essential feature; the apparition of the Holy Grail.

The third offering was Fetes (Festivities) by Claude Achille Debussy. Fetes is the second of three pieces composed in 1897-99 and entitled collectively "Nocturnes." It expressed the restless dancing rhythm of the atmosphere. A background of uninterrupted festival was persistent throughout.

Next was presented Scherzo from "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn. This was a song written for Shakespeare's fairy play at the request of the king of Prussia in 1843. It was a perfect example of frolic and laughter.

The program was brought to a close with Iberia: Triana, by Albeniz. This was a theme from the different corners of Spain and was a musical picture of the city of Triana.

Freer Elected Trustee
In the list of newly elected officers of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, appearing in Tuesday's Freeman the name of J. Addison Freer was inadvertently omitted. Mr. Freer was unanimously elected trustee for three years.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

City Life: Five young men lounging in front of an upper East side tenement . . . It's three o'clock in the morning . . . They've had a few drinks and are kidding among themselves. . . . A shuffling figure comes in sight . . . One of the five makes a wisecrack . . . It's a hot one and all laugh loudly . . . The shuffling figure stops and draws a revolver . . . A flash and a report . . . Four boys flee . . . The shuffling one stalks away cursing . . . Ten minutes later, a policeman pokes his club into the ribs of a figure slumped on a doorstep . . . Then he sees blood . . . The young man dies soon after reaching the hospital . . . And his four companions can't recall what it was that made them laugh so hard.

Busy hands: Residents of Suttons place, that swanky settlement that sprang up among the tenements fronting on East river, rubbed their eyes. For 15 years or more, the four-faced clock on the tower of the old brewery between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth hadn't run. Nevertheless, the hands were moving. They weren't showing the correct time however. At intervals, some moved forward and some backward. It really was a bit jittery. Investigation disclosed the fact that, fearing the works would fall down and injure someone, the police had removed them. Thus, the hands were playthings of the breeze.

Ghetto glimpse: Housewives blowing the feathers of live chickens . . . To determine something or other . . . An old man, with a shawl about his frail shoulders, regarding the passing throngs with deepest, smouldering eyes . . . More housewives looking at fish swimming in tanks . . . Tenement mothers shouting down orders to children from upper windows . . . Washings flapping high above littered court yards . . . A push cart pickle vender crying his wares . . . A white-bearded ancient trundling a little hand organ on a dismantled baby carriage . . . A bearded patriarch reading by the light of a flickering candle.

Harassed Citizens: "Having made my peace with the government—at least I paid the first quarter and am trusting to luck to scrape up the other three—now I find that the state of New York will have to be dealt with. Whoever designed the blank for the Empire State's income tax must have been the originator of codes used during war times. I haven't the slightest idea how to fill it out. But I glean enough to know that I owe the state and owe plenty. I'm wondering if I couldn't arrange with Uncle Sam and Governor Lehman to take over my salary and allow me enough to live on. I'd be better off all around and wouldn't have to fill out those forms. Very respectfully, John S. S." Sounds good to me!

Mike fright: George M. Cohan, according to his own declaration, doesn't care for radio. That is, he doesn't care to go into radio steadily. He has a number of reasons. One is that he's heard friends use material that showed how much of a grind radio really is for the performer. Another is that he—though the author of more than half a hundred plays or maybe a hundred since he's lost count—hasn't the slightest idea of how to prepare a radio script. Then there's the microphone. He's been facing audiences for many years now and feeling quite natural while doing it. But a microphone makes him nervous!

Service: On the edge of the fashionable upper east side section is a shop that makes shoes to match costumes. All the patrons have to do is bring in the cloth and the shoe people will do the rest. On Fifth avenue, there is an establishment that makes bags to "accompany any costume" at a charge of $15. The depression really is at an end.

Berkeley, Calif., Wants Everyone Fingerprinted

Berkeley, Calif.—Berkeley has decided officially to be the first city of the United States to attain finger-printing of all its citizens.

In starting its present campaign, Berkeley has three major objectives in view:

First: To derive all benefits that are recognized as coming from a complete fingerprinting record of all of a city's inhabitants.

Second: To set an example for other cities of the United States until, it hopes, the movement becomes nationwide.

Third: To remove from the public mind the idea of stigma that attaches to fingerprinting because it has been used largely in the past in connection with criminal operations.

Hans in Egg Race to Cackle on Radio

Dallas, Texas.—The hens entered in the international egg-laying contest at the Texas Centennial exposition probably won't understand or care, but their nests will be wired for sound. Also for publicity. The hens will settle to their task June 1. When the first egg drops into the super-comfortable nests which the exposition will provide a buzzer will sound and an attendant will hurry into the henery with a microphone, and the hen's cackling will be picked up for a waiting radio audience.

WHO ELSE WANTS TO
SAVE $24.48 OR MORE
ON GASOLINE?

Thousands of motorists a month are cutting driving costs by changing to Richfield! They're thrifty motorists like you—Ford, Plymouth and Chevrolet owners.

Actual road tests prove they can get 21.9 miles per gallon from Richfield—instead of the 16.2 miles a gallon they were averaging from other gasolines! They're buying 136 gallons less per car per year—saving $24.48—on their average annual total of 8,500 miles.

Read what they say, and remember—if you drive a big car, you can save even more!

"I figure I've saved enough in the past month to take the wife and myself to the theatre. That's where we are driving to our De Soto tonight, thanks to Richfield!"

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have supervised mileage tests on Richfield Hi-Octane Gasoline.

These tests involved the use of Richfield Hi-Octane brought from a Richfield service station in three New York cars—Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth.

The results of these tests show that the average mileage per gallon obtained by these cars from Richfield Hi-Octane was twenty-one and nine-tenths (21.9) miles.

Printed jackets
top plain frocks.
—Sara M. Brown

Many of the new summer fashions will have jackets of some kind this summer. Contrast combinations in fabrics and color making striking and interesting costumes. If the color scheme is carefully worked out and the fabrics properly used.

The jacket frock designed by David Cox, shown above, is an example of both fabric and color contrast. The dress of delphinium blue crepe has a high draped neckline, dropped shoulders, gored skirt and printed girdle.

The linen jacket is printed in delphinium blue and mimosa yellow to harmonize with the dress. It has short, puffed sleeves and patch pockets. There is a practical as well as a chic slant to this costume, for the separate jacket and girdle can appropriately adorn other summer frocks in the wardrobe.

GAY SCALLOPS ACCENT A SLIM-LINE MARIAN MARTIN FROCK

PATTERN 9758

When slender lines get together with a dainty cotton fabric there's just no use trying to resist the smart frock that results! And here's a delightful example of the trim silhouette which you'll see on the well-dressed Miss or Matron everywhere. Miss Marian Martin knows that a becoming surprise is most slenderizing especially when it's covered with dainty scallops and button accents. You'll look as tall as you've always longed to, in those interesting panels that run straight from shoulder to hem, while the twin sleeves are ever so easy to adjust. And here's variety—for the sleeves may flare gracefully or be gathered into soft puffs. Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9758 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Be sure to order our MARIAN MARTIN PATTERN BOOK and see how to grace every summer occasion with smart, appropriate clothes! Models shown include the latest vacation clothes, beach wear, play outfits for children, slenderizing designs—even a whole lovely troussseau. Summer fabric and accessory news too. Summery
Two-way
Hat

PATTERN 5647

If you're Fashion smart this season, and intrigued by a bit of easy crochet, you'll let smartness "go to your head" in the form of a lacy "sailor" hat. Quickly crocheted in string, the same lacy stitch is used throughout to make the version that dips so alluringly and the one that rolls so prettily "off face." Directions for crocheting the flowers—and how necessary they are to the smart woman this season—are included.

In pattern 5647 you will find complete instructions for making the hat in both ways and the flowers, an illustration of them, and of all the stitches needed, material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

HOMESPUN YARN

Of all the uses of electricity on the farm, few save as much time and labor and give as much satisfaction as pumping water.

Management given to permanent pastures during the next few weeks determine to a large extent what the yield will be later in the summer.

Any idle space in the home garden before August 1 may be used for a second planting of such crops as beans, beets, carrots, lettuce, or some other vegetables.

When its third year of financing farmers was completed toward the close of May, the Farm Credit Administration had loaned more than $3,704,000,000 since its organization.

Regarded as the first authoritative text in New York, the new Cornell bulletin E-247 discusses the problem of soil erosion. Single copies of this bulletin may be had from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York.

On an average about forty per cent of the hens stop laying between June 15 and September 1. If the eggs are removed during this period rather than after October 1, about one and one-half tons of feed will be saved on a flock of 1,000 birds.

STRAWBERRY CROP SHORT BECAUSE OF DRY WEATHER

Many reports are being received at the Farm Bureau Office from fruit growers in all parts of the county to the effect that the strawberry crop is being materially reduced by the dry weather. The strawberry harvest started last week and will not continue long if the dry weather continues.

Uster is one of the leading strawberry producing counties in the state and a short crop seriously affects hundreds of growers. The strawberry producing area is concentrated in the south end of the county, particularly in the Milton-Marlborough area.

The use of coal for the home kitchen range was thought to be more or less passe, but a model has been developed that offers remarkable performance both as to its cooking qualities and economy of operation. It offers a hot surface of over 700 degrees F. at all times as well as a simmering plate to keep things warm. It is highly insulated and gives off little heat to the room, so that even in summer it can be used with comfort.

Sow a row of marjoram to dry for poultry dressings. It is hard to find in the market when desired for holiday use. Likewise winter savory, and basil will come in handy.

Knack to Judge Quality in Beef

Ithaca, N. Y., June 4.—There's a knack to buying beef, ask any housewife who goes to market and has to judge whether the raw meat is going to be tender and juicy when cooked. The color, connective tissue, velvety appearance and other things that indicate quality can help the person who handles the family purse, says Professor R. B. Hinman, of the New York state college of agriculture.

At the department of animal husbandry a simple experiment was conducted to see if persons could judge quality in the raw product, their opinions were then checked with the final cooked product.

Two pieces of meat were chosen, one from a choice young steer, the second from a three-year-old dairy heifer. The two carcasses were cut and placed where 25 persons in the test could view them. The two pieces of meat were then cooked and returned to the same contestants. The ordinary pan broiling method was used.

With the raw meat, 16 persons selected the steer beef as most likely to be best when cooked, nine persons chose the heifer beef. When the meat was cooked, twenty of the contestants selected the steer beef, and five the heifer beef; or, says Professor Hinman, 64 per cent of these persons chose the steer beef while it was raw, but 80 per cent picked the steer beef after both samples were cooked.

"DADDY AND ME AGREE—NOTHING TASTES AS GOOD AS HELLMANN'S!"

And that's mighty easy to understand. For condiments dressing can ever give you the same wonderful flavor as Hellmann's. Or the same rich creaminess or full-bodied goodness.

Hellmann's, you see, is made of fresh eggs—combining only choice salad oil, freshly-broken eggs, special vinegar and imported spices. No starchy fillers. It's all mayonnaise. And it's double-whipped for extra creamy smoothness.

So, why not get a jar of Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise—today? It is so good—yet costs but a trifle per salad.

'Cracker Barrel' Politician To Direct Landon Forces At Cleveland Convention

By DONALD CAMERON.

Washington—Governor Alf M. Landon's floor maneuvers at the national convention in Cleveland will be in the practiced political hands of a "cracker barrel politician" from the industrial east.

Even Democrats express respect for the political sagacity of Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Republican representative from North Attleboro, Mass., who has been named floor manager to further the presidential aspirations of the Kansas governor.

"Keeps Himself in Office."

"Martin is a shrewd fellow who spends his vacations on cracker barrels, making friends and keeping himself in office when other Republicans are being thrown out," said Democratic Senator Frank Maloney of Connecticut.

A master of practical politics and a veteran house member with twelve years of service, Martin is the unofficial assistant to Minority Leader Bertram H. Snell of New York. He frequently is mentioned as the next probable national committee man from the Bay State.

Martin is a short, rotund bachelor of 51 who meets a voter once and ever after remembers to call him by his first name. He rose by his own efforts and now is publisher of the North Attleboro, Mass., paper for which he was a reporter while in high school.

Success Predicted

Tucked away in his files is a letter from one of his school teachers, who, pleased at an early political success, wrote him to say, "Joseph I predict we'll see you in congress some day."

Joseph W. Martin, politically wise easterner, will manage the Landon forces on the convention floor at Cleveland.

Jolly and amiable, a ready "mixer" among men, Martin is well versed in the intricacies of politics. He is a member of the powerful rules committee of the house, the foreign affairs committee, and runs the Republican side of the house.

Many months ago, Martin was constantly asserting that the Kansas governor seemed to him to be the best Republican bet for 1936.

POLITICS at Random

THE prediction that President Roosevelt would compete with the Republican national convention for publicity, and seek to blanket it, seems likely to qualify as the season's worst political guess.

There were at least two good reasons, all the time, for being certain he would attempt no political bombarding in the speeches he was booked to make in the south and west during Cleveland convention week.

One was that that hardly would be the time, when the Republican picture was changing from day to day, to take up major campaign issues. It would be too much like shooting at a rapidly-moving target.

The other reason was that it would take something like a super-human effort to dislodge any national convention of a great party from page one. The reading public likes its conventions too much.

No one versed either in politics or publicity was surprised when it developed that Mr. Roosevelt proposed to confine his speeches to more or less philosophic discussions of past historic events, and leave the event at Cleveland for future reference.

Lehman Action Uncertain

MUCH manifestly futile speculation likewise is being expended on the question whether the President, or anyone else, will insist that Governor Lehman of

New York reverse his decision and run for reelection.

If the draft is exercised on Mr. Lehman, it will not be done for some time. It would be the worst politics in the world for the governor to say one week he wouldn't run, and then say the next he would.

Washington has been hearing a lot about another Democratic governor, but in a different way.

In Indiana, a state executive is ineligible for reelection. Insistent word has come out of that state, however, that Governor McNutt is to be kept in the national picture, one way or another.

Some time back McNutt partisans were pointing out what a fine candidate for vice-president he would make. Nothing came of that, and then the talk turned to his qualifications for a place in the cabinet.

The latest and best prediction is that Senator Minton will be elevated to the federal bench after the election, and McNutt appointed senator to succeed him.

Clark Gives A Hint

DEMOCRATIC headquarters strategists have been present with a campaign hint in the keynote speech of Senator Clark before the Missouri state convention.

Instead of lambasting the Republicans, Senator Clark largely ignored them. He praised Mr. Roosevelt, and then turned loose on John J. Raskob, the Du Ponts and the Liberty League as the real enemy. Whether or not they adopt similar tactics in the national campaign, party headquarters men are vastly interested in the suggestion.

Fletcher Smiles

HENRY P. FLETCHER is preparing to take leave of duty he doubtless will rejoice to see on other shoulders.

Two years ago he was chosen chairman of the Republican national committee. He didn't know a great deal about politics. The party was badly divided, and it was essential that much reorganization work be done without trading on anyone's toes or being partial to any faction or candidate.

The position had no future, as everyone expected the new nominee to pick his own chairman. All Fletcher had to do was to raise a lot of money, get a broken machine under way, and dodge showers of brickbats.

There is no more thankless job than this, but Fletcher has come through it smiling.

Be sure that any person who serves you food or drink has clean hands. Remember that he or she doesn't have to stick a finger or thumb in your food to contaminate it.

ELECTRIC, MADE IN '90's, RACED 10 MILES AN HOUR

Brenham, Tex. (AP)—Heber Stone, Brenham farmer, owns what he says is one of the first automobiles built in America.

The antique (Baker wagon), which appears to combine the best features of an ox-cart and a wagon, was built some time in the '90's in Kansas City by Stone's father, Heber Stone, Sr., and Dr. Alasia P. Baker. "It was patented in 1897," Stone says. In Brooklyn, where it was demonstrated shortly after its manufacture, the city restricted use of the electric model to the hours between 4 and 7 a. m. After 7 a. m. the streets were for "self-respecting horses."

The machine was capable of 10 miles an hour "when all batteries were working," Stone says.

By the silence emanating from Addis Ababa, we judge that the civilizing of the Ethiopians is proceeding happily.

Scientist Seeking Watermelon With Thin, Tough Rind

Charleston, S. C. (AP)—Dr. Charles F. Poole, plant expert, is looking into the genetics of the watermelon. He and his co-workers are conducting research to ascertain inheritance factors of the plant with the aim ultimately of developing a melon combining the best features of various brands.

"The chief difficulty now with watermelons is that each plant requires different land space in which to grow," says Dr. Poole.

He says he will study them with the view toward growing one having the market standard rind—thin but tough—as well as sweetness and symmetry.

ZENA

Zena, June 3.—The Christian Endeavor met on Friday under the leadership of Albert Holmizer, who used as his topic "How Criminals are Made." There were three guests, Miss Joyce Burhans of Kingston, Miss Rose Garrity of Zena, and C. Powell of Kingston, a regional director of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union.

The regular business meeting of the Zena Country Club will be held on Friday evening, June 5, in the club house. There will be a social hour after the business session.

The annual pig roast to celebrate Frank Tichenor's birthday was held at the Tichenor farm on Chestnut Hill on Sunday. There were many friends and relatives from New York, Brooklyn, Staten Island and Zena present.

Welcome to Ladies of Mayors' Conference

On Wednesday morning Mrs. Harry B. Walker, chairman of the reception committee of the women of Kingston, together with Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman, wife of Mayor Heiselman, Mrs. E. B. Loughran, Mrs. A. DuBoise Rose, Mrs. John Schwenck, Mrs. A. N. Graham, Mayor Heiselman, members of the committee, were early at the Governor Clinton Hotel to welcome the ladies accompanying the mayors and other officials attending the Mayors' Conference now in session in this city, and to do all in their power to make the visit of the distinguished guests a thoroughly enjoyable one.

In the afternoon at two o'clock, autos were in readiness to take the ladies who so desired, for an auto ride into the Catskills and around the Ashokan Reservoir. As the most of the autos were driven by Kingston women they could act as guides, telling of the points of interest going and coming. Where there were chauffeurs, members of the reception committee accompanied the guests. Fifteen autos took the party for the ride into the Catskills as far as Mt. Tremper, going over a route that enabled the guests to see the Kingston water supply, as to reservoir and water shed. On the return trip the party stopped at Watson Hollow inn where delicious afternoon tea was served on the porch or in the large and very attractive living room. The party had the opportunity of seeing the aeration plant in full activity. The approaching thunder storm cast a strange and impressive coloring over the water of the reservoir that was almost weird.

It was a delightful way for the ladies to become acquainted with each other and several of the women of Kingston, and the entire party were returned to the Governor Clinton Hotel just before the storm broke.

This morning at 10 o'clock, an auto trip to Lake Mohonk was the order of the day by way of entertaining the ladies who will have luncheon at Lake Mohonk.

St. Ursula Publishes 'Echoes of Marygrove'

There has just been issued a copy of "Echoes of Marygrove," published by The Academy of St. Ursula, Marygrove, Kingston, N. Y., that is most attractive as to appearance, and interesting as to content. The editor-in-chief is Frances Doyle, the assistant editor, Pauline Kellmann, the activity editors, Dorothy Jones, Patricia Sanglyn and Marie Flynn; the business managers, Mary Tierney, Phyllis Babcock and Marguerite Flaherty.

"In Retrospect," gives a brief but vivid picture of the four years spent by the present graduating class, at St. Ursula Academy, and is admirably written by Frances Doyle, the editor.

There are many excellently written short articles, a few admirable religious poems; one very thoughtful and philosophic poem, "Through the Glass"; two quite thrilling "continued" stories; a resume of the performances of "Little Women"; paragraphs about school activities; an article in French, Alumnae Notes, etc., making interesting reading as to subject matter and its presentation to one having little if any acquaintance with this fine academy and its students as well as for those most closely identified with the school.

Congratulations are extended to the editorial staff and writers in "Echoes of Marygrove," for its unusual excellence.

Sale for Blind at 304 Wall St. Now On

The annual Sale for the Blind is now being held at 304 Wall street, marking the 28th year sightless workers have presented articles for sale. The majority of the articles are for household use and, instructors say the workmanship is first class and the materials used are first class.

One of the popular sellers this year is a knitting bag which is on metal framework and will stand open and accessible as one works. There is a large variety of shopping bags, many of them in elaborate designs, the product of hand weaving. Another popular number is the sewing stand with its framework covered with attractive cretonne and supplied with hooks for thread, shears, pin cushion, etc. It is just the convenient height to place beside a chair when sewing. The smocks are in demand, being made in different designs and materials. The blind basket makers of the state have the reputation of turning out the strongest and best designed willow work to be found on the market and many baskets will be for sale.

The Temple Emanuel Synagogue is in charge of the sale on Tuesday, June 9, from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Mrs. Harris Brown, chairman, is assisted by the following committee: Mrs. H. Jacobs, Mrs. B. Blankfield, Miss M. Lawler, Mrs. B. Levy, Mrs. H. Mandell, Mrs. A. Handler, Mrs. M. Block.

Clothing for hot weather should be light and porous and should be changed frequently.

Find Missing Heir

Wary of society life and trying to make his way in the world selling negatives, William Webster Trull (above), 15-year-old son of a wealthy New York financier, was found in Chicago after a month's disappearance. (Copyright Chicago Times-Herald Associated Press)

Why Be President?

Country's Chief Executive Says Goodbye To His Old Life; The Pay Is Good, The Hours Are Long, The Worries Many.

By The Associated Press.

Why does anyone want to be President?

He lives in a house provided by the state, but two-thirds of it is a museum.

He is surrounded by guards—secret service men for himself, a special police force for the house and grounds.

His mornings are given over to conferences.

There are cabinet meetings twice a week.

He may lunch at his desk so business will not halt.

Routine official writings exceed 25,000 papers annually, an average of 80 a day.

Afternoons see fewer visitors, but more business.

He presides as formal dinners.

Ordinary dinners and luncheons at the White House take on a social-political aspect due to the exigencies of time.

Opportunity for a simple family gathering around the dining table is relatively rare.

The White House executive offices employ 161 persons. Servants number 20.

Salary And Expenses.

The Presidency costs the government between $400,000 and $500,000 annually. The President receives $100,000 a year, $25,000 of which can be used only to cover his costs of transportation and "official entertainment." If his expenses under these heads do not total $25,000, the surplus is turned over to the treasury.

There have been 32 Presidents. Six have died in office, three from assassins' bullets. Being President can worry men, embitter them, set them apart from other men, sadden them.

General William Tecumseh Sherman said that if he was nominated he would not accept and if elected he would not serve. After his first full term, President Calvin Coolidge declared: "I do not choose to run."

Presidency Brings Prestige.

Nevertheless, the White House has attracted hundreds of men in public life.

There is a splendor in the Presidency which communicates itself to every incumbent. What the President says and does is of paramount importance to the nation and the world.

The United States is full of men whose important utterances receive first page attention and start editorial and informal discussion. But there is only one person whose words and acts can have the effect which the President can produce, and that is the President himself.

The President is the leader of the nation. A present success can wipe out much past error. Until the day he leaves office the most ineffectual, most timid President can make for himself a place in history.

Even after he leaves the White House, prestige surrounds a man who has been elected to the highest office. Railroads prefer to make available private cars rather than ordinary "sleepers" when he travels. His movements are noted by the press; well-wishers continue to send gifts; he is the center of party conferences. The death of a former President sends all other news to the inside pages.

How He Is Selected.

How does one get to be President? A major consideration of nominating conventions, other things being equal is geographical. Certain campaign issues may make party leaders feel a nominee's election chances will be better if he comes from the west, say, instead of the east or the south.

A political background has been regarded by both major parties as an essential qualification for any nominee—preferably political activity that has made the candidate's name a household word.

Governorships are one of the main springboards to the Presidency. The list of governors who became President includes: Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Van Buren, Tyler, Polk, Johnson, Hayes, Cleveland, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson, Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Fame derived wholly or in part from martial exploits helped elect George Washington, William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Grant, Benjamin Harrison.

From the senate came Jackson, Van Buren, W. H. Harrison, Tyler, Pierce, Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, Harding.

formulas are computed both for large acreages and for the home garden.

Control Measures.

By means of a color plate illustrating the circular, Dr. Hockett shows the different life stages of the Mexican bean beetle and the nature of its feeding injury in such a way that it may be readily identified in the field. In fact, the appearance of leaves that have been attacked by the bean beetle is especially characteristic of the insect, the injured leaves having a peculiar, skeletonized, lace-like appearance which is not likely to be confused with the damage inflicted by any other bean pest.

Control measures include the use, whenever practicable, of varieties that make rapid, vigorous growth and the selection of planting dates that will make it possible to dodge the periods of greatest injury from the pest during July and August. In the case of lima beans, dry beans, and other types of beans that require a long period to develop, Dr. Hockett recommends both spray and dust treatments with notes on preparing the spray and dust formulas and on the types of equipment required for effective dusting or spraying. Events Around The Empire State

Johnstown, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—

Two men were convicted of first degree robbery by a county court jury here in connection with the $20,000 holdup of a truck last fall. The jury returned the verdict last night against Joseph Libell and Max Stein, both of New York. Libell was sentenced to 30 to 60 years in Clinton prison. County Judge C. T. Calderwood deferred sentence on Stein.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—

A board of inquiry was ordered today to investigate the death of Private Samuel Milazzo, 31, of New York, a member of Company E, 26th U. S. Infantry, who was shot through the head with a bullet from his own rifle in company quarters yesterday.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—

A bolt of lightning, which Deputy Medical Examiner Howard P. Carpenter described as "a direct hit" killed John Williams, 55, a road worker as he ran for shelter during a thunderstorm. Williams lived at Hopewell Junction.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—Robert Ford, a negro, swallowed $11 in bills when a footpad attacked him.

While being given an anesthetic for treatment of a skull fracture he literally coughed up his money, first a $10 bill and then a dollar.

Wappingers Falls, N. Y., June 4 (AP)—George Scheff, 29, of 3350 Fenton avenue, the Bronx, was hurled through the windshield when he lost control of his car while crossing Wappingers Creek. The machine skidded west over an embankment and into a small growth of trees. Scheff was taken to the Vassar Hospital at Poughkeepsie where his condition was reported serious.

Fifty years ago June 14, Thomas A. Edison took title to two abandoned shops, moved the Edison Machine Works from Goerck street, New York, to Schenectady and thus laid the foundation for an industry which has grown into the present General Electric Company.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

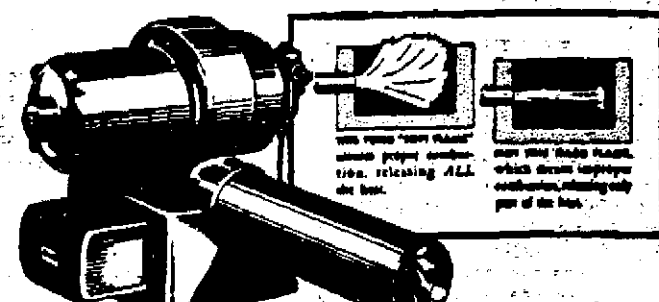

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

New Pest Threatens State's Bean Crop

Geneva, N. Y., June 4.—Differing from almost every other member of the ladybird beetle family to which it belongs in that it feeds on plants, especially beans of all types, rather than on other insects as do most ladybird beetles, the Mexican bean beetle is now well established in all sections of New York state, but more particularly in the Hudson Valley and on Long Island, according to a pamphlet issued by the Experiment Station here describing this insect and its control.

A native of Mexico and Guatemala, the so-called Mexican bean beetle was first found in the southern United States in 1918 and was first observed in New York state in 1927. To meet the demand for information on how to combat this pest, especially on lima beans and dry beans where it is sometimes a serious menace, Dr. H. C. Hockett, entomologist at the Experiment Station with headquarters on Long Island, has prepared a brief circular setting forth the essential points about the beetle and its control. A copy of the circular may be obtained without cost upon application to the Station.

Control Measures.

By means of a color plate illustrating the circular, Dr. Hockett shows the different life stages of the Mexican bean beetle and the nature of its feeding injury in such a way that it may be readily identified in the field. In fact, the appearance of leaves that have been attacked by the bean beetle is especially characteristic of the insect, the injured leaves having a peculiar, skeletonized, lace-like appearance which is not likely to be confused with the damage inflicted by any other bean pest.

In the case of lima beans, dry beans, and other types of beans that require a long period to develop, Dr. Hockett recommends both spray and dust treatments with notes on preparing the spray and dust formulas and on the types of equipment required for effective dusting or spraying. The formulas are computed both for large acreages and for the home garden.

FIRST PRIZE FRANKFURTS

This week, while First Prize Frankfurts are on special sale, why not find out how good they are? Truly, their flavor gives them rare distinction. The popular demand for First Prize Frankfurts has made them one of a group of First Prize best sellers. The very choicest pork and beef, the finest imported spices, and an exclusive blending formula produce frankfurts of superb flavor. The most sensitive taste will enjoy the wholesomeness of First Prize Frankfurts.

FIRST PRIZE

THE MODERN convenience of ready hot water-supply, as provided by a gas automatic storage water-heater, costs less—much less—than it did fifteen years ago. The rate charged for the gas itself, for example, has declined more than a third.

But there are other savings as well. The automatic water-heaters of today actually burn less gas. You buy the gas cheaper, and you don't need as much, because the heaters are improved. Then too, the heaters have come down in price. Public approval of automatic water-heating has made it possible to build heaters in quantity, with correspondingly lower prices.

All-in-all, automatic water-heating with gas offers you today's biggest bargain in home convenience. Find out about it for your own home.

By C. E. SUTTERFIELD

Time in Eastern Daylight Saving.

New York, June 4 (P).—Another pre-convention broadcast will deal with the man on the street, both in his status as a voter and as a party leader. The question is, "Who's going to win the Republican Nomination?" Nine cities, including Cleveland, site of the convention, will be the source of the questioning. After the voters have been queried in eight of them, the broadcast, which will last an hour at 2:30 Monday afternoon via CBS, will be switched to Cleveland where H. V. Kaltenborn and Bob Trout will put the question to as many party leaders as they can locate. For these interviews a newly designed micro-wave transmitter will be used. Meanwhile the schedule for the Tuesday broadcasts from the convention has been pretty well arranged. It calls for the opening session pickup to start at 12 noon, and the night session for the keynote address at 9. All chains, NBC, CBS, MBS and InterCity are to be connected to 68 or so microphones being installed in the convention hall.

Reports Submitted at Mayors' Conference Here

The first session of the Mayors' Conference Wednesday was held at the ball room of the Governor Clinton Hotel in conjunction with the other new laws require villages and other associations. This meeting followed a "get acquainted" dinner at noon. Hon. James J. Mahoney, mayor of Batavia, presided at the joint session which was opened by Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom who gave the invocation followed by Mayor Heiselman's address of welcome. President Wendell E. Phillips of Port Jervis gave his report as president of the conference and immediately after this report was given the fire chiefs, village and city clerks adjourned to their respective meeting places where their individual problems were taken up.

In presenting Mayor Heiselman the chairman of the committee stated that at Syracuse last year a promise had been made that Kingsport would give the conference a relief of village of liability for damages to the city of Kingston this year. He simply stated that the convention was here.

Invitations were announced from Rochester, Elmira, Saratoga Springs for the 1937 convention and the matter will be left to the resolutions committee for consideration and action later when the committee reports. Later it was announced that Monticello would like to have the convention there next year, one of the features which were held up as a reward for the selection of that town as the convention city was that the convention should meet in a "cool place" once. This suggestion was one which every delegate probably would have welcomed Wednesday afternoon due to the unusually severe heat wave which preceded the heavy shower later in the afternoon.

Mayor Francis H. Marx of Oneonta, chairman of the Bureau Council, who made a report on the activities of the Clearing House of Municipal Information, paid a tribute to the efficiency of William Parr Capes of Albany, executive secretary, and his staff for the manner in which the conference business had been handled during the past year. Mayor Marx gave a detailed report of the volume of business which his bureau had done during the year and told of the vast amount of data which had been sent out at the request of the members of the Conference. During the year there had been received requests for 2,277 different items and these requests had been cared for. A total of 22,338 pieces of information were sent out during the year at the rate of 74 each day. During the year he said Mr. Capes and his staff had cared for the business of the conference in a most efficient manner and his service had so impressed him that he desired to express his thanks from the convention floor.

Mayor John Boyd Thacher, 3rd of Albany, who was scheduled to give the treasurer's report, was unable to be present and his report was postponed until Thursday morning.

Legislative Work

A summary of the Legislative Work by New York State Municipalities was given by Corporation Counsel Frank S. Parmenter of Troy, vice chairman of the Conference's Legislative Committee. In his report he told of the analysis of bills presented to the State Legislature and of the action taken at the weekly meetings which the committee held. When in doubt as to any measure, the opinions of the city and village administrators were sought by means of a referendum and the results were reported to the Legislature.

Mr. Parmenter's report in part was as follows:

Our committee studied 318 different bills of which we approved 85, disapproved 95 and decided to take no action on 139. A large number of other measures which affected a single municipality or a small group were referred to the cities and villages concerned with the recommendation that the officials take such action as they desired and inform their representatives in the Legislature. Of the 95 bills we disapproved, 90 were not passed by the legislature, two were vetoed by the governor, and only three have become laws. One of these grants a tax exemption. Another provides that an employee reinstated from a preferred list to the same or a similar position must be paid at least the same salary he received when separated from the service. We thought that this approval would indirectly fix salaries by a state act and perpetuate every salary increase. The third permits cities to appropriate money for rooms of veteran organizations.

Of the 85 bills the committee approved, 54 were passed by the legislature. Forty-three of these are now laws, three were vetoed by the governor and eight are awaiting his action.

Six of the new laws regulate the issuance of municipal bonds. The Rossmore law requires that only serial bonds be issued except by New York, Buffalo and Rochester. It must be made in the calendar year following the sale of the bonds. It also drastically reduces the period for which bonds can be issued. The Miller-Gamble law requires that after July 1, 1937, an appropriation of 5 per cent of the first year from current revenues toward normal capital improvement be made. These laws carry out the recommendations of the Conference's advisory committee. Another statute makes permanent the temporary debt-equalization law enacted last year. Several technical changes are made.

ment. On the contrary many of the new statutes will assist municipal administrators to reduce the cost of government by increasing administrative efficiency and reducing future municipal debt. While your committee's work was unusually exacting this year, we have enjoyed the experience of being of service to the cities and villages and of assisting the Governor and Legislature in their studies of so many measures affecting municipal government. Our relationship with the Governor and both branches of the Legislature has been most cordial and we trust mutually beneficial. We are deeply indebted to the leaders in the Legislature for their cooperation and to the many city and village officials who assisted us in making correct decisions by communicating their advice and experience.

Training and Research.

Mayor Charles D. Osborne of Auburn, made a report for the advisory committee on Training and Research. His report, covering the period from June 3, 1935, to June 3, 1936, follows:

"Thirty-six training schools for eight groups of municipal officials were operated during the year under the direction of the Municipal Training Institute of New York State and the Bureau with a total attendance of 5,935 officials. Ten schools were held for policemen, twenty for firemen and one for each of the following groups: Police chiefs, instructors of municipal zone fire schools, assessors, financial officials, public works officials and city and village clerks.

During the year there was a development of great importance in the training school program. The legislature of the state of New York passed a bill which provides that the Municipal Training Institute of New York State may receive federal vocational education funds for its training activities through the state department of education and under proper safeguards of the governor. The Municipal Training Institute has thus been recognized by the governor and legislature and the way has been paved for it to receive federal funds for its training work. If such funds are received a permanent, well-rounded and efficient training program is assured.

As reported by this Bureau last year, all training schools for municipal officials which have been provided in the past by the mayors' conference under bureau direction, are now being operated by the Municipal Training Institute of New York State with the Bureau acting as its staff agency. The Institute is an educational corporation of city and village officials chartered by the Regents of the University of the State of New York. The Institute is holding its second annual meeting here today.

In December, 1934, the Advisory Council on Police Training, representing the Mayors' Conference, the State Police Chiefs' Association and the State Police, decided that the standard four-year police training curriculum adopted in 1931 was no longer practicable and that extensive revision should be made in the existing system. A study made by the council showed that practically all police officers had been trained in the training school future need was the training of new policemen only, numbering about 200 exclusive of New York City, Buffalo and Rochester. The advisory council voted unanimously to propose to governor and legislature a new plan of municipal police training for New York State. This plan, embodying mandatory features and an extension of the existing zone system, was prepared in the form of a bill and introduced in the state legislature. It contemplated the establishment of the New York State Police Training Board, a body of state and municipal police executives and authorities, to direct the system. The bill was passed by the Senate in 1935, but was not reported by the Assembly Committee. The bill was again passed by the Senate in 1936 but was defeated in the Assembly by a very small margin of votes. The legislature has not approved this plan owing to the opposition of some firemen, who would not be affected by its provisions, and to disagreements among a few police chiefs. The conference and the bureau have exhausted the possibilities of voluntary police training and are convinced that they must now look to the state for the effective and mandatory training of the policemen. The president of the conference has urged the organization to recommend to the Municipal Training Institute of New York State that no further voluntary police training schools be operated under its auspices and that the conference abandon its efforts to have the state provide recruit police training until the police of the state can agree on a satisfactory plan.

Instructors in the twenty-one fire schools were brought together in Albany this year for an intensive course of training for the first time since 1931. Twenty-eight instructors from seventeen municipalities received instruction in a revised standard curriculum and had an opportunity to perform evolutions in the modern drill tower of the Albany Fire Department. Zone fire schools operated during the year with an attendance of 5,500 city and village firemen.

The training schools continue to be greeted with undiminished enthusiasm by the municipal officials of the state. The men prize particularly the certificates of qualifications issued to them by the Institute under authority of the Board of Regents. New York State continues to lead the nation in the work of training municipal officials.

In 1931 at the inception of the Spelman Fund grant, the bureau outlined a six-year research program embracing the study of forty-three state-wide city and village problems. That program, carried on by the bureau staff, committee of municipal officials and graduate students of Syracuse, New York and Columbia Universities, has been completed, with general recognition as one of the most practical and effective municipal research developments in the United States. There is abundant evidence that the studies are in constant use and have made a lasting impact on municipal governments of the state through improved local administration and remedial state legislation.

It is gratifying to be able to report that a permanent research program, which will be provided in the future by the staff of the bureau and committee of municipal officials. This permanent research program will include the periodic revision of existing studies and analyses of new state-wide municipal problems as they arise.

The printed publications of the bureau now number thirty-eight. Since the last report of this bureau, the following printed studies have been issued: Municipal street and highway financing in New York State; a summary of actuarial surveys of seventy local police and fire pension funds in New York State; municipal revenues from sources other than taxation; collection and disposal of municipal refuse in New York State; organization and administration of a municipal water department; collection of taxes by various units of local government.

Three other studies have been completed for the bureau and are awaiting printing and distribution as follows: Organization and administration of municipal recreation facilities; expanding municipal activities; bid practices on public works.

This bureau reported last year the completion of one of its most significant research projects and the establishment of a new service as an outgrowth of the project. The bureau, in cooperation with the State Pension Commission, made actuarial studies of seventy city and village police and fire pension funds. At the conclusion of the work arrangements were made with the State Pension Commission to bring any of these studies up to date when so requested by a municipality. During the past year this actuarial consultation service was utilized by several municipalities.

The practical value of these pension studies has been amply demonstrated. Since the inauguration of the work in 1931 seven local police pension funds have entered the New York State Employees Retirement System. As a further result of the studies five local police pension funds and four local fire pension funds have been closed by local law to new entrants, thus providing for their eventual extinction. Furthermore, three local fire funds are considering entrance into the State Retirement System or adoption of a local law on a sound actuarial basis by local action or close the fund to new entrants. In every other municipality studied the reports have focused official and citizen attention upon the problem of establishing sound local pension funds.

Two other important research activities were continued during the year. The New York State Department of Labor has placed at the disposal of the Bureau several of its workmen's compensation experts for study to have made of this phase of municipal administration. The studies are sent without charge as a confidential memorandum to the mayors of the municipalities studied. Studies have been completed and sent to the mayor in Kingston, Niagara Falls, Oneonta, Cortland, Corning, Ithaca, Watertown. Studies are now in progress or will be inaugurated shortly in Albany, Jamestown, Mount Vernon, Troy, Syracuse and Olean.

Another research development is the preparation of a model building code which was inaugurated in February, 1934, under the sponsorship of the Bureau, the New York State Department of Labor and the College of Engineering of New York University. A staff of competent engineers and architects has formulated a tentative code which will be distributed to municipal officials of the state about December of this year. A large number of cities and villages are awaiting completion of the code with a view either to adopting it in full or using it as a basis for the extensive revision of an existing code. The code will be of permanent value to municipalities of the state because it will be kept constantly up to date. It will be issued in loose-leaf form and will be revised periodically with all changes sent to every city and village.

In 1931, the Bureau, in cooperation with the New York State Association of City and Village Engineers, issued as Publications 7 and 7A a model contract form and model detailed specifications for public construction. The specifications were prepared in loose leaf form in order to facilitate periodic revisions. During the year, a committee from the Engineers' Association was appointed to work with the Bureau on the revision of these specifications. This work is now under way.

The current radio series on municipal problems presented by the Mayors' Conference and the Bureau over Station WGY and its associated stations of the National Broadcasting Company came to a close on April 25, 1936, marking the completion of the seventh year of such broadcasts by the Conference over the station WGY. Twenty-four additional municipal officials and dramatists were presented. Tentative arrangements have been completed to begin the eighth year of such broadcasting over Station WGY in November of this year. Comments received this year from listeners indicated that the current series has been the most successful one yet presented.

For the last six years, the work of this Bureau has been financed almost exclusively by a grant from the Spelman Fund of New York. The grant is concluded at the end of this year. Municipal officials are confident that the work of the Bureau can be financed permanently in the future without any additional cost to the cities and villages of the state.

It should be a source of gratification to them and to every city and village taxpayer that the Bureau has pioneered a program of training and research which has no parallel in the annals of American municipal government.

Advisory Committee

Mayor Robert E. Patterson of Freeport gave a brief report for the Advisory Committee.

At the conclusion of the reading of reports, Secretary Capes stated that he had read the papers and reports which had been submitted and which were to be submitted later during the convention and he had found the papers to be one of the finest sets which had ever been prepared during the 24 years of the conference. In bringing to Kingston men to speak to the assembled mayors some of the most competent and capable men in their lines had been secured and he urged every mayor to attend the business sessions.

Mr. Capes also stressed the need of prompt assemblies since there was much work to be done. There will be discussions on the various points presented by the speakers at round table sessions and all delegates were urged to attend these meetings and freely express their opinions.

There was to be a meeting of the resolutions committee at 5 o'clock to take action on various resolutions which were presented. No resolution is acted upon from the floor but must first be submitted to the committee and acted upon when presented by the committee.

The following were appointed members of the nominations committee: Mayor Samuel A. Carlson, Jamestown, chairman; Mayor John McNeil, Floral Park; Mayor Ira Kendall, Potomac; Mayor Harry Jenner, Johnstown; and Mayor Victor C. Lewis of Fulton.

The committee on resolutions is: Corporation Counsel Frank S. Parmenter, Troy, chairman; Mayor George V. L. Spratt, Poughkeepsie; Mayor Henry T. Maxwell, Goshen; Mayor Joseph J. Walker, Dobbs Ferry; and Mayor Wallace Bigelow, Baldwinville.

Following the appointment of committees and the reading of resolutions which were referred to the committee on resolutions the session adjourned.

Installed Pastor of Church at Katsbaan

The Rev. Irving H. Decker was ordained to the ministry and installed as pastor of historic Katsbaan Church near Saugerties on Monday evening, with the Classis of Ulster in charge of the ceremony.

The Rev. M. Seymour Purdy, pastor of the American Reformed Church of Newburgh, of which Mr. Decker has been a member since he was 12 years of age, preached the sermon, and the Rev. T. S. Bayles, professor of theology in New Brunswick Theological Seminary, of which the young pastor is a recent graduate, gave the charge to the congregation.

The Rev. John Heidenreich, president of the Classis of Ulster, presided. The Scripture reading was by the Rev. Cornelius T. Murykens of Gardiner Reformed Church.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Eugene Duryea of the Blue Mountain Reformed Church.

In his sermon Dr. Purdy took his text from Mark 9:10: "And he said unto them, this kind can come forth by nothing but prayer and fasting." In the charge to the pastor, the Rev. Victor Simons of Glen Rock, N. J., referred to Mr. Decker as an "Ambassador of Christ," and outlined characteristics he will have to develop in his ministry. In the charge to the congregation the Rev. Mr. Bayles bespoke confidence, sympathy and understanding for the pastor.

The ritualistic service of ordination, with the laying on of hands followed; and the Rev. Howard Schade of Coxsack, a classmate of the Rev. Mr. Decker in New Brunswick, sang a solo.

The Rev. Mr. Decker is a son of

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Decker of 38 Liberty street, Newburgh. He is a graduate of Newburgh Free Academy and Hope College. At both school and college he was noted for his leadership and his interest in sports.

Over supply of Horned Frogs

Coleman, Tex. (AP)—C. W. Simpson has taken down his sign, "horned frogs wanted." He supplies orders for the little reptiles. This spring 300 of the horned frogs were wanted in New York. Simpson offered a negro boy 2 1/2 cents each for all he could bring it. The next day the boy and his companions appeared with 400.

Pianos can be had that look like everything from desks to sideboards and chests of drawers, in all colors of the rainbow and in every period style from sixteenth century to modern.

MARKET FOR FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

New York, June 4 (AP)—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The strawberry market was generally steady. Hudson valley strawberries of various varieties in quart baskets wholesaled at 15c-18c, some fine quality large size 20c-25c, while fair and small sold down to 10c-13c. Long Island strawberries sold within the same price range.

Old and new crop white potato prices continued to soar in a stronger market. Supplies of old crop were light and new crop moderate. The finest old crop Maine Green Mountain potatoes U. S. No. 1, in 100 lb. sacks realized $4.00.

Receipts of Big Boston lettuce from Orange county, N. Y., continued light. The demand was moderate. U. S. grade, No. 1 2 1/4 inch minimum and upward brought $1.00-$1.25, Ben Davis and Gano No. 1, 2 1/4 inch 75c, McIntosh No. 1, 2 1/4 inch $1.25-$1.50, Northern Spy No. 1, 2 1/4-3 inch $1.50-$1.75, and Stark No. 1, 2 1/4 85c-$1.00.

The asparagus market was slightly weaker. Green asparagus from New Jersey jobbed out at $1.75-$2.50 per dozen bunches for the colossal grade and $1.00-$1.75 for the fancy. Supplies of old crop carrots from the western part of the state were moderate. Topped unwashed carrots in 100 lb. sacks sold around $1.25, while washed in bushel baskets or tubs brought 85c-$1.00 for the best.

Price fluctuations on green peas were generally small and unimportant. Long Island green peas in bushel sacks $1.25-$1.75, while New Jersey offerings in bushel hampers brought $1.00-$1.75 depending upon quality and condition.

The apple market was again dull. Receipts were light and the demand slow. New York Baldwin apples, N. Y. U. S. grade, No. 1 2 1/4 inch minimum and upward brought $1.00-$1.25, Ben Davis and Gano No. 1, 2 1/4 inch 75c, McIntosh No. 1, 2 1/4 inch $1.25-$1.50, Northern Spy No. 1, 2 1/4-3 inch $1.50-$1.75, and Stark No. 1, 2 1/4 85c-$1.00.

Engineers Hear About Unemployment Relief And City Building

At the school for city and village engineers in the Governor Clinton Hotel this morning, the speakers were Colonel Oliver F. Allen, representing Arthur S. Tuttle, state director of the Federal Public Works Administration, and Clarence Post, chief of the WPA engineers.

Col. Allen, a PWA engineer, spoke on the subject, "Municipal Construction and Unemployment Relief," and Mr. Post discussed the various types of projects which the Works Progress Administration has approved and undertaken to operate.

Col. Allen said as follows: "You requested the State Director for PWA to speak here on the subject of Municipal Construction and Unemployment Relief, based on the experience growing out of a program which involves 440 State and Municipal Projects completed or being carried out with Public Works Administration funds in New York state. He has asked me to present the matter to you for him."

"In 1932 with the deepening of the depression and the alarming condition of unemployment, the necessity for stimulating recovery by giving men work instead of charity became increasingly apparent. Fear of the future had accelerated the downward swing of the depression by bringing to a sudden stop all public as well as private construction work."

"A remedy was set forth by the American Society of Civil Engineers in a resolution adopted early in 1932. This resolution (1) approved the principle of public works as the most effective means of increasing purchasing power, stimulating trade and recovery, and reviving employment; and (2) urged on Congress the enactment of necessary legislation to extend Federal credit facilities to solvent states, counties and municipalities to enable them to continue their normal programs of necessary and productive public works."

"This platform was developed after a study of the shrinkage in construction volume in the United States during the preceding years. The total of all construction had dropped from ten and one-half billion dollars in 1928 to two and a half billions in 1932. These figures include public works which have fallen from three and a half billion a year to one and one-half billion."

"The PWA has made allotments to 440 local non-federal projects in New York state. The total federal money allotted for these projects was nearly three hundred million dollars. The total cost comes to $400,000,000. The difference between the cost and the allotments is made up by funds supplied by the communities themselves to supplement federal loans and grants. The grants range from 30 per cent on projects financed from the 1933 and 1934 appropriations, to 45 per cent on those financed from the appropriation of last year."

"Of these 440 projects, 136 or well over one-quarter of the total, have been completed. Another quarter is rapidly approaching completion. A substantial portion of the remainder of the program already under way will be finished before the close of the year."

"During this period federal PWA has furnished 36,000,000 man-hours of employment to countless New Yorkers in depression times, at regular rates of pay, through normal channels of employment."

"Now, concerning the future of the PWA in connection with Municipal Construction and Unemployment Relief. In addition to the projects completed or under construction there are on file in the state director's office applications for almost 250 additional projects. One hundred and eighty of these projects have been approved by the administration and construction could begin at once were additional funds available."

"These projects were submitted to PWA last year for inclusion in the present public works program, but due to lack of funds, allotments could not be made for them."

Mr. Post said: "The President, on March 18, 1936, transmitted to the Congress a message containing recommendations for legislation to continue the Works Progress Administration program into the fiscal year 1937. The final form in which this legislation will be enacted into law cannot be definitely foreseen at this time, nor is it possible to determine in detail the conditions under which the work program will be carried on. It is, however, essential to commence at once preparation and planning for an orderly continuation of Works Progress Administration operations for twelve months beginning July 1, 1936. This should be done on the assumption that there will be no radical change in Works Progress Administration organization and procedure. However, in any discussion of new projects with sponsors it must be made clear that no definite commitments can be made in advance of the enactment of legislation.

"In planning the extension of the program, it is essential that full advantage be taken of the experience already gained. To this end, there are certain general observations relating to all projects, which are followed by a brief discussion of the various types which the Works Progress Administration has approved and undertaken to operate."

"In the promotion of new projects, emphasis should be placed upon sponsors' contributions. Small consideration should be given to a project on which a reasonable sponsor's contribution is not forthcoming, unless it is included in a community program on which the average contribution is an adequate one. (The foregoing does not apply to professional projects where sponsors' large contributions are not to be expected.) A sponsor's liberal contribution may obviously alter the criteria hereafter given as to the desirability of projects from the Works Progress Administration standpoint. For example, a building construction project which is not inherently suited to the program but on which the sponsor is willing to contribute all of the materials and pay for all of the skilled labor may become a highly desirable project."

"Sponsors should furnish all necessary engineering and architectural designs and pay the salaries of all personnel that they consider necessary to make their own inspections of projects."

"More emphasis than formerly should be placed upon the sponsor's discharging his responsibility for the submission of adequate plans and designs. It is obviously not reasonable to require that a sponsor complete plans and designs for an elaborate structure before the project application has been approved. However, he should be required to submit adequate preliminary plans and be made to understand that the project will not be started until complete plans and designs have been furnished. This applies not only to construction projects but also to those of a statistical survey and research nature where concrete plans and work procedures are obviously essential to the efficient execution of the work."

"It is apparent that in spite of instructions to the contrary, many projects have been submitted for approval which contemplate carrying on with Works Progress Administration funds the normal functions of local political subdivisions. Such proposals should be scrutinized and investigated with more care than has been the past practice."

"In the future, state administrators should submit only such projects as they have a reasonable expectation of carrying out."

"In planning operations for the coming fiscal year, attention should be given to the possibility of scheduling projects so as to take advantage of seasonal variations in weather conditions. Open-air construction projects should be scheduled for those periods of the year when such operations are efficient and economical, and projects suitable during winter months should be held in reserve for that period."

"In the cases where a high concentration of available labor makes such work outlets desirable, the cost of construction may run as high as $25,000 per mile in ordinary topography. It is not advisable that heavy types of road work be undertaken unless sponsors are willing to contribute the extensive use of machinery which would be necessary for economical and efficient operation."

"In connection with projects for road construction, it should be noted that the prohibition on expenditure of Works Progress Administration funds on federal aid highways and on grade crossing elimination has been removed by the provisions of section 7 of the Supplemental Appropriation Act, fiscal year 1936."

"Elaborate bridges and viaducts should be avoided but projects involving the construction of simple bridges can frequently be undertaken to advantage."

"Projects for the repair of old paving and for new paving of simpler types are excellently suited to the program and have proved to be one of the best types of work in urban areas."

"Public buildings. Projects for the construction of large buildings have almost universally proved undesirable for inclusion in the program. Such work is acquired by economical execution by force account methods, the man-year costs are relatively high, and the skilled labor required is usually not available on relief rolls. Furthermore, such work can usually be more advantageously carried out by contract. For these reasons, future projects for the construction of public buildings should, in general, be limited to new buildings or additions to existing structures estimated to cost not to exceed $50,000. However, as previously stated, the foregoing criteria may be altered if sponsors' liberal contributions are forthcoming."

"Projects for repairs and alterations to public buildings should be encouraged where the skilled labor required is available. Such work is especially valuable for providing employment during the winter months. It is suggested, however, that on projects of this type, sponsors' increased contributions should be sought."

Engineers Inspect Ashokan Reservoir

Thirty-five engineers from the various cities of New York state rode around the Ashokan reservoir, Wednesday afternoon, and also inspected the Mink Hollow and Cooper Lake units of the Kingston water supply system.

The engineers displayed much interest in the trip, and enjoyed the explanations given by W. D. Hubbard, engineer of the New York city water supply system, who explained the process of purifying the waters that are carried all the way to New York.

Engineer Henry Darrow of the Kingston water works accompanied the party and took charge of explaining about Kingston's water supply.

State Engineers In Golf Tourney

While some of the state engineers toured the Ashokan water shed, Wednesday afternoon, their fellows took part in the golf tournament at Twaalfskill Links arranged by Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin and Police Commissioner C. S. Preston.

Engineer F. Conrad of Port Jervis took first prize for low gross with 74. C. Hunt of Endicott low net, and R. Walt of Syracuse, low net. The consolation prize went to Sibley of Scotia, and then he was lucky enough to have someone buy it up for a souvenir. He was empty handed.

Plan Big Season At Camp Half Moon

With the advance registration for Camp Half Moon, the Boy Scout summer camp for Ulster and Greene counties, exceeding that of any previous year plans are going forward rapidly for what promises to be the largest attended camp in the history of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Word from the Scout Council of this morning shows that the advance registrations exceeds not only the hopes of the directors but also exceeds the total of last year. The first two weeks period of camp finds the Ranger and Villages filled with but few boys the Pioneer unit, and also filling rapidly.

Several of the districts have exceeded their goals in the while Scouts they had planned were very practically all of the city.

In the Kingston District the registrations have been from Troops No. 26 of Port Jervis, 19 of High Falls, 12, 10, and 3 of Kingston.

The camp officials are very happy at this advance registration and are going forward rapidly with more details for the summer which promise to be not only the most enthusiastic but the best in the history of the camp.

Of twenty-four troops will participate in the annual outing at Camp Half Moon on Saturday, June 13, in the morning will include fishing, field activities, and a picnic. The program will run from noon to 6 p.m. It is expected that the program will run from the afternoon of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Parents and Scouts wishing to secure information regarding the big camp can do so by getting in touch with any of the various scoutmasters or committeemen, or the Council of the Ulster-Greene Council, Boy Scouts of America, 277 Fair street, phone 3878 Kingston.

VITAL IMPORTANCE OF HEALTH MAINTENANCE

Beginning Tuesday William A. McBride of the McBride Drug Stores will publish each week an editorial advertisement on the importance of the proper way to maintain good health, and how wise it is to consult a physician at the first signs of impaired health. Also why physical examinations at regular intervals may prove advantageous.

In this series Mr. McBride will clearly set forth many reasons why self-medication is uncertain and oftentimes leads to serious complications. Also that the propriety of ethical pharmacy will not permit a conscientious pharmacist to practice counter prescribing.

First, because he has no license to prescribe. Second, because he does not presume to have the knowledge of a physician.

Mr. McBride hopes that by making the public more conscious of the services of the medical profession a higher health rate may be maintained in the community. He will appreciate your comments regarding his statements.

We've become reconciled to "suits," "coatings" and "shirtings," but it takes a little time to get used to a real estate announcement of "house-lings in singles and doubles."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JACOB

New York, June 4 (AP)—Mining shares and specialties moved up-stream today in the face of general stock market declines of fractions to a point or so.

On skimpily buying Cerro De Pasco, Howe Sound, Air Reduction, Stone & Webster and Texas Pacific Coal & Oil gained moderately.

Fractions to a point or more were chipped from du Pont, John-Manville, Case, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, New York Central and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

The late tone was easy. About 650,000 shares sold.

Mayor Phillips Lauds Kingston as Example Of Pay-as-You-Go City

Mayor Wendell E. Phillips, of Port Jervis, president of the New York State Conference of Mayors, speaking this noon before the joint luncheon of the Rotary-Kiwanis Clubs at the Fair Street Reformed Church, struck a pleasingly personal note when he praised Kingston as a city of which the state can be proud, because it has continued throughout the long period of economic stress as a municipality which has made the "Pay-as-you-go" policy a tangible reality.

"I cannot speak too highly," he said, "of the mayor, the council, subordinate workers and the citizens who have made such a scheme possible. We who live elsewhere in the state have been shown by Kingston that the big task confronting municipal executives is not relief, but the elimination of the need of relief."

Mayor Phillips continued by saying that it is his belief that adoption of a modern housing campaign would bolster industry and eliminate unemployment, if not totally, to a point of insignificance. "No houses," he said, "should be allowed to stand, let alone provide shelter, when they are 50 years old. People should recognize the depreciation of dwellings in the same light as they realize the depreciation of other property, both stationary and rolling."

Mayor Phillips also thanked the service clubs for allowing him to present his views before them, saying he accorded it a high honor. He expressed deep satisfaction at the splendid hospitality extended by everyone to the visiting officials and their guests.

Fire Chief Deasy Tells Association Important Fire-Fighting Factors

Speaking before the session of the Fire Chiefs' Association this morning at the Elks Club, Battalion Chief James J. Deasy, New York City Fire Department, retired, used as his topic, "Sizing Up a Job."

Acknowledging that the last 20 years has seen a tremendous stride in the advancement of Fire Prevention, Fire Engineering, Campaigns of Education in Methods of Fire Prevention daily instead of yearly, Chief Deasy said, "Buildings are designed to reduce fire extension hazards to a minimum, auxiliary fire fighting equipment in many structures leaves little to be desired. With all of this buildings are as fire resisting as their contents. Structural and housekeeping precautions are dependent on the human factor, and, consequently, fires have and will occur. When this happens the fire department is the court of last resort to correct the evil. In other words, the surgeon who must operate to offset the results of human frailty."

Chief Deasy, outlining the fundamentals of fire fighting, said firemen and fire officials rarely will go wrong if they remember to size up a job by knowing definitely just where the fire is, make every initial effort centered on confining the fire to the smallest possible area, and "though this may appear a radical statement, extinguishing the actual fire itself is the least of the three."

It is necessary to know just where the fire is, get at the visual evidence, before intelligent operations may be commenced. The visual evidence may be far removed from the actual fire. That is, an attic may smolder, but the blaze actually be in the cellar.

"Looking back over a quarter of a century of fire fighting in New York," Chief Deasy continued, "this experience combined with study convinces me that the following points will cover what a fire officer must know to fight a fire properly: 1. The life hazard; 2. The need of evacuating occupants in adjacent or adjoining buildings; 3. There is ever a life hazard to the members of the department operating at fires, and precautions should be taken to provide means of a getaway, always provide secondary means, if not present, for escape."

The use of masks and helmets was especially stressed and the chief begged officers not to be afraid of public criticism for having the courage to be forthright enough to care for the welfare of his men, to have adequate reserves on hand.

Especially important is the check made at fire scenes to determine the cause of blazes, whether incendiary or from accidental causes. At least 15 per cent of all fires have a criminal smell about them, Chief Deasy said.

Adding to his plea for reserves, the chief said in conclusion, "I must stress the fact that many fires have gotten away because of the indecision of the officer in charge at the scene in failing to or delaying the calling of assistance. This is usually motivated by thin-skinned reaction to criticism for not holding it, but as you all well know in your fire audience there are thousands who feel they are better fitted to command at fires. Study your profession, for it has ceased being just a job. Don't wait for the fire to start before having a plan of attack."

Chief Deasy's talk was loudly applauded and the assembled chiefs gained much practical worth from his experience in fighting fierce petroleum conflagrations.

Following Chief Deasy's address a long discussion was held, with the speaker answering pertinent questions pertaining to big city, small town and volunteer units. A vote of thanks was accorded him for his excellent address.

It was voted at the meeting to incorporate in the printed record of the session Fire Chief Deasy's splendid address.

It was voted on motion by Fire Chief Chas. Noll, of Poughkeepsie, that a nominating committee of five be appointed to provide adequate distribution of officers throughout the state. The committee, which will act upon this motion at a meeting later today is composed of Chief John Gibson of Mt. Vernon, chairman; Commissioner W. R. Castlemore of Buffalo; Chief Maxon, of Gloversville; Chief Gates, of Glens Falls; Chief Joseph L. Murphy, of this city. Association President Michael J. Fleming, Chief of Albany fire department, is an ex-officio member of the committee.

The address by Chief Earl Krowe, president of the Fire Chiefs' Emergency Plan of Westchester County and Fire Commissioner, Hastings-on-Hudson, on "Organization and Administration of a Volunteer Fire Department" was deferred until the afternoon session by the chair.

The session adjourned shortly after noon to reassemble at 2 o'clock.

RANKHEAD NAME IS POWERFUL IN CAPITAL

Washington, June 4 (AP)—The name of the new speaker of the House of Representatives is a powerful one on both sides of the capital.

Speaker Rankhead's brother, John Hollis Rankhead, II, since 1918 has sat in the Senate chamber where his father was a famous figure years ago.

The Alabama brothers teamed together in the practice of law before William R. the speaker-to-be, first was elected to the House 26 years ago.

In recent years they worked together to obtain passage of the Rankhead cotton control law and other measures.

Rule and Foul Club

Last Sunday, members of the rifle team from the R. R. & P. C. attended the first of a series of five shoots to be held by the RR-Union Rifle League. The other four shoots will take place at Poughkeepsie, New York, Kingston and Connecticut. The club will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at Lake Katonah, just off Route 9, at Lake Katonah, on the Ticonderoga road.

George Salaky Is Held Insane

County Judge Frederick G. Traver today handed down his decision in the matter of the examination of George Salaky, Jr., Ulster Heights young man who is being held under indictment charging murder, first degree, for the killing of Harry Siegel last April 2. An examination was held Wednesday to determine his mental condition and today Judge Traver held the man insane on testimony of the doctors and directed that the defendant be removed from the county jail to Matteawan State Hospital for the criminal insane.

Salaky will be retained there until such time as he is restored to his right mind when he will be returned to Ulster county to stand trial of the murder indictment.

At the hearing Wednesday the People were represented by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and Assistant N. LeVan Haver, Ellsworth Baker of Monticello appeared for defendant.

Cleanliness in the home is quite as important as personal cleanliness and this is primarily the responsibility of the housewife. Keep the home clean inside and out. Dishes, glasses and all eating utensils should be washed thoroughly with soap and hot water and then rinsed with boiling water. A simple method is to place them in a dish rack after they have been washed and then pour boiling water over them.

Augustus Cole, Civil War Veteran, and His Wife Guests of Honor

Augustus Cole, 92 year old Civil War veteran, and his wife, Della Cole, 86 year old, of Elster Park were guests of honor on Memorial Day at a joint memorial service of Jersey City service clubs sponsored by Rotary at the Hotel Plaza. Honored with Mr. Cole was Lewis H. C. Star, 90 years old of Neptune, N. J. and Mrs. Ellen A. Treney of Woodlawn Avenue who is a Gold Star Mother having lost two sons in the World War.

Mr. Cole and Mr. Cyster are the two sole surviving members of Van Houten Post No. 7 Civil War Veterans which once had a membership of 1,000.

Augustus Cole is a member of Platt Post, G. A. R. of this city and attends the annual reunion of the 101st Regiment each year held on Antietam Day. He served from 1861 to 1865 and participated in the battles of Rappahannock, Station, Warren, Spotsylvania, Second Battle of Bull Run, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. He was a member of the 80th New York State Volunteers.

Mr. Cyster was a member of the Sixteenth Ohio artillery. Both of the veterans were attired in their Civil War uniforms at the ceremonies. Mrs. Treney's two sons killed in action in France were members of 75th Division units.

The address of the day was delivered by Dr. S. Parks (Adman) as has been his custom for many years and in which he denounced the Black Legion as a "damnable business."

Police Game Rained Out Last Night Will Be Played Today; Banquet Enjoyed at Stuyvesant

"I couldn't be more proud of you boys that I am tonight," said Mayor Conrad J. Heiseleman Wednesday in the Hotel Stuyvesant, to the Kingston police baseball team which was host at the festive board to the Newburgh nine that was to have opposed it at the Kingston Fair Grounds in a game that was scheduled as one of the entertainment features of the mayor's convention.

The battle was slated as a "war of wits" on the upturn diamond, but old Jupiter Pluvius rained out the affair, yes, even hailed it out, bringing sadness to a crowd of fans and to Sergeant James V. Simpson, boss of the Kingston nine, who had his men all pepped up to beat Newburgh.

But the great struggle is not off altogether. The teams will meet this evening at 6 o'clock, lacking none of the vengeance that was stirred up by the diamond war of yesterday. If anything, there'll be greater rivalry, the players having had opportunity to meet and spout off about what they hope to do to one another in the baseball classic of the summer.

Although the game was rained out, and Kingston didn't get its chance to win, still Mayor Heiseleman went on to compliment Sergeant Simpson and the athletic law enforcement agency for their efforts toward making the convention a success and included in his appreciation the Newburgh team which came forth with the opposition.

The mayor went on to praise the police for their part in helping to arrange for the convention, pointing out that cooperation is the thing that Kingston needs to promote its interests. Kingston is the best convention city in the state, said the mayor, "I have all the facilities and also the hospitality, which is so evident."

"I appreciate the cooperation I received from the police department and the fire department. It cost more than $2,000 to put on this convention and both departments raised a substantial amount toward this fund. Without the cooperation of the police and firemen, I could not be as happy as I feel tonight."

When the mayor went on the thank Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, Sergeant Simpson, the man behind the baseball team, and Peter Keresman, president of the Patrolmen's Association, for their activities. He also thanked Chief Brown and his Newburgh cops, who he said, are near and dear to him after his own experience. The cops, too, were extended the Doodler's Band that furnished the music for the ball game.

He also thanked the members of the Kingston Club, who furnished a floor show at the Stuyvesant.

The mayor remarked that all of the police commissioners were present for the dinner. "This is the first time since I've been mayor," he said, "that all of the commissioners have been to one of these affairs. I'm glad to see them here. It shows they are interested."

Concluding his speech, the mayor remarked, "Too bad it rained today. You boys from Newburgh have something coming to you tomorrow." City Manager Blake of Newburgh expressed appreciation for Mayor Heiseleman's remarks about the Newburgh Police. "We feel the same way toward your department," he said, "and admire the fine spirit of cooperation, which I hope will last for many years to come."

Chief of Police Brown of Newburgh in his speech remarked, "We are glad to come to Kingston. Of course, we want to take your scalps. I hope, Mayor Heiseleman, for the success of your convention."

Chief Wood, when he spoke, said, "I'm sure your friendship with Newburgh will last forever. I'm glad to see you get together again. The rain, I'm sure, didn't dampen the ardor of our team and the game tomorrow at 6 o'clock should be a good one. Placing credit where it is due, I want to praise Sergeant Simpson, who has worked hard with the Kingston team and has his boys all ready to go."

Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin, when he spoke, called the Kingston Police Department the best in New York state for its size, comparing it with New York's finest. He praised Chief Wood for his record as head of the police and the department for its help in planning the convention. Concerning the activity of the police in carrying out their duties during the convention he said, "I'm sure the convention guests will go away talking about the courteous treatment that you are giving them."

Sergeant Simpson spoke for the Kingston ball team and Captain John Corkdale for the Newburghers, each presaging victory for his respective team today.

During the banquet the Doodler's Band played under the direction of Charles Lukas. Miss Gladys O'Day and her entertainers from the Clover Club on the Saugerties road put on a delightful program. Vocal solos by Miss O'Day, by Lester Stone, accompanying himself on his guitar, and dances by Marion Teller, the Denise sisters and Joan Fairbanks made up the bill. The New Orleans Rhythm Boys, musicians at the Clover Club, led by Tom DeRosa furnished dinner music.

United States Open Starts at Baltusrol

Springfield, N. J., June 4 (AP)—The biggest gamble in sports—the United States Open Golf Championship—started today over the links of the staid and storied Baltusrol Club with the bookmakers, as usual in this show, sticking out their necks.

Bromide as it sounds, this was one of the widest-open opens in 40 years with at least 20 players rated a good chance to win.

All told, there were 188 scheduled starters. The pace setting rates fell to a southwestern pair, Jack Munger, Dallas amateur, and Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma City, a recent recruit to the pro ranks. Their starting time was 7:15 a. m. (EST).

The consensus of the final score ranged from a record-equalling 286—the mark set 20 years ago by Chick Evans, Jr., and tied in 1932 by Gene Sarazen—to 289. The course, a 6,866 par 12 layout, will yield to good shot making and it's a cinch par will be cracked a plenty before the windup Saturday afternoon.

Parks, the cherubic Pittsburgh pro and Jimmy Braddock of the links, who staggered experienced club-swingers at Oakmont last year by coming through at 59 to 1, didn't teach the bookies much of a lesson because they're quoting him again at the same price. Plenty of putter punters have climbed on board.

It's been four years, at least, since a pre-tournament favorite came through.

Cubs Challenge K. H. S. Seconds Again

Coach Dick Whiston and his Kingston High School Second team has been offered another challenge by Earl Sleight's Kingston Cubs. This by the way is the second challenge. Last month the Bruins contacted with the management of the future greats but for some known and unknown reasons, the initial offer was rejected. The Cubs are hoping that the Seconds will accept this new offer.

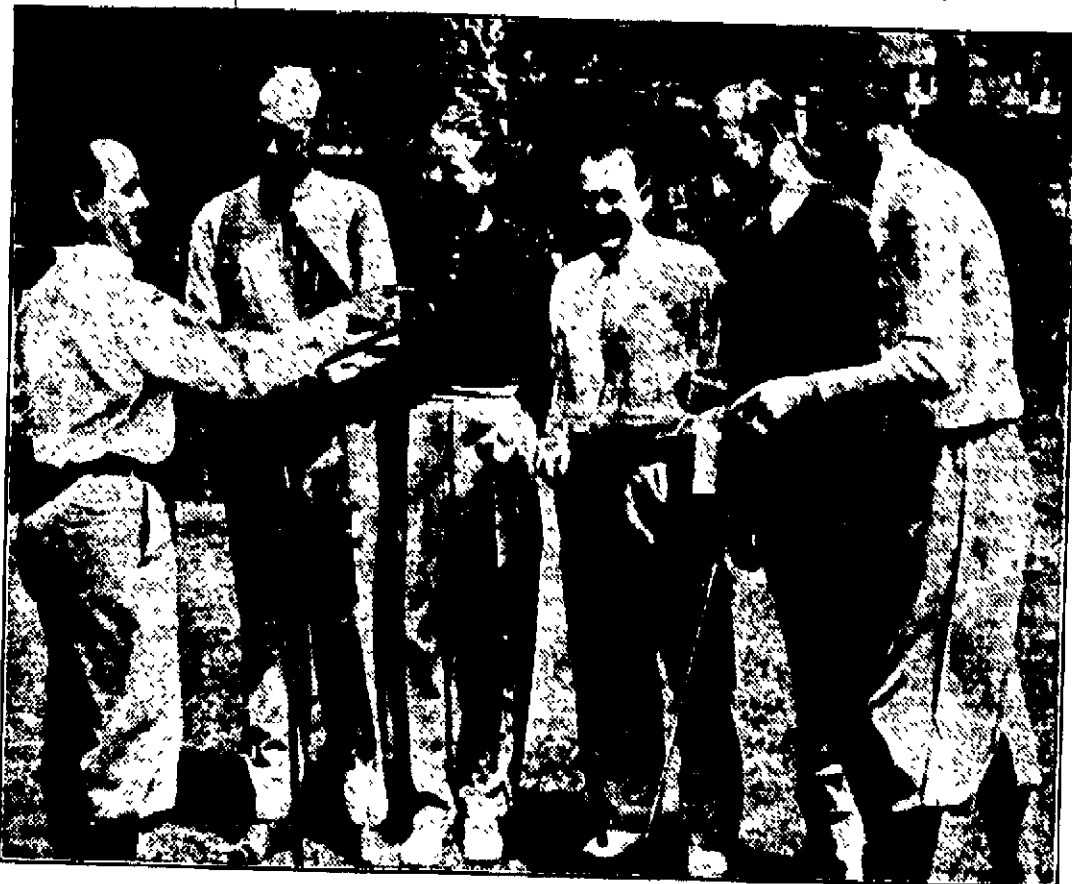

The Cubs are willing to meet the Seconds anytime, anywhere, and if this challenge is agreeable to the High School club, the Jayvees are requested to communicate with either Captain Sleight or Secretary Thomas.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT.

GOLFERS GATHER FOR NATIONAL OPEN

Bigwigs of golfdom are gathering at Short Hills, N. J., for play in the National Open over the Baltusrol course, reputed one of the most difficult in the country. Tagging Major League Bases

Although it's still too early to predict that their managers will love them in September as they did in May and June, the slugging prowess of Yankee Joe Di Maggio and Cardinal Stu Martin appears to have those two youngsters ticketed as the class of the 1936 rookie crop.

The manner in which they have been whaling the ball, regardless of who or what the pitching opposition, makes them the talk of both leagues at the end of the first two months of the current pennant chase.

Their extra base belting has them batting in or around the coveted .400's, and has been doing a lot toward keeping the New York Yankees and the Gas House Gang from St. Louis at the top of their respective league ladders.

Both have been breaking up ball games with their stickwork more as the rule than the exception. Only yesterday, Di Maggio, who came up from the coast last spring as the most highly publicized rookie in the history of the business, clubbed out a triple with the bases loaded, and a single, also with men on the bags, to break the hearts of the aspiring Chicago White Sox and give the Yanks an easy 11-1 win.

At the same time, Martin, a product of Asheville, N. C., was hammering out a single and triple to pace the St. Louis Larruppers to a 7-3 victory over Brooklyn.

Despite these triumphs, however, the two leading clubs were unable to increase their respective league leads, for the second place outfits also were winning their games. The Boston Red Sox downing the Cleveland Indians 6-2 with a five-run spurge in the seventh, and Hal Schumacher limiting the Chicago Cubs to three hits while his New York Giant mates were making all their runs off Curt Davis in the first inning for a 3-0 win.

Meantime, the Boston Bees, with Bob Reis doing an effective job on relief pitching as well as singling home the winning run in the 11th inning, nosed out the Pirates 4-3; the Washington Senators found the going easy for a 7-4 conquest of the hapless St. Louis Browns, and the supposedly weak Philadelphia Athletics surprised the world's champion Detroit Tigers 11-7, despite homers by Goose Goslin and Ervin Fox. The Phillies and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

The defeat yesterday for the Tigers, dropped Mickey Cochran's club into a tie for fourth place with the Senators for the only chance in the American League standing. On the other side of the big-time picture, the Bees pulled up to a slim percentage margin over the Reds for fifth place, while the Dodgers sank to a cellar-deadlock with the Phils.

C. & R. Socials Will Play K. H. S. Faculty

Tonight at Block Park the C. & R. Club, a strong contender for the "Open" League title, will take on the much heralded Kingston High School Faculty. There has been keen rivalry between these two teams for some time and tonight's game should clear up many arguments. Eddie Burns thinks his C. & R. Club team will breeze through this game, but "Professor" Joe Block claims the teachers are the best softball outfit in the city. Probable batteries are: C. & R. Club, "Johnny" Snyder and "Jim" Woods; K. H. S. Faculty, "Speedball" Kinsella and "Skipper" Kenny.

Pioneers Will Play Two Over Week-end

The Close Pioneers will engage in two games over the week-end. On Friday they will cross bats with the East Kingston Beavers and on Sunday afternoon the Pioneers will bring to Hasbrouck Park one of the strongest semi-pro outfits in this vicinity, the Baumville Independents of Newburgh.

The Close nine will hold a practice session tonight and all players are expected to attend.

Canfield Defeat Arcanums
Tuesday night the Canfield softball team defeated the Royal Arcanums in an AAA game by 16-12. Norman Spinneweber and John Coulton featured the game with home runs.

Rare Luther Bible
A Bible illustrated by pictures painted by Martin Luther, the great German reformer, and bearing many notes in his handwriting, was discovered by a Danish bookseller. He purchased a collection of books from a German family. Among them was the precious Bible. Besides notes in Luther's writing, the Bible bears notes written by other leading figures in the German Reformation movement. These include Melancthon, the reformer who was acknowledged to be the movement's leading scholar.

Adults who want to play the piano but fear they are "too old to learn" should remember that typewriting is taught primarily to adults, not children. All that is needed is the will to learn.

Average American Uses Lots of Milk and Butter

Mr. Average American uses a little over a pint of milk a day in one form or another. To be more specific, according to statistics the average American uses 55.3 gallons of milk a year. In addition to the milk, he eats 17.8 pounds of butter, 4.3 pounds of cheese, and 2.7 gallons of ice cream in the course of a year. There are other nations which have a higher consumption when it comes to ice cream. Other nations don't even report on their ice cream consumption, while in this country it is quite an item.

The great dairying countries of Europe use more milk and cheese per person than the United States, although there is little difference in butter consumption. Sweden heads the list in milk consumption, with 63.7 gallons per person for the year; Denmark, with 68.5; Switzerland, 67; and Germany with a consumption of 61 gallons per person are all ahead of the United States.

When it comes to cheese consumption, the American just isn't in it with his four pounds, for the average Swiss eats over 23 pounds, the average Frenchman or Dane 13 pounds; the German eats more than nine pounds, and the Englishman about the same.

Many Giants Mentioned Through Ancient History

Stories are common among the lower civilized peoples, as well as among savage tribes, to the effect that men have lived who have measured in feet in height. Og, King of Bashan, is said in Deuteronomy (3:11) to have been the last of the giants. His bedstead of iron was nine cubits, or between 11 and 13½ feet in length. Pliny mentions the name of an Arabian giant who measured 9½ feet, and also speaks of two others who were 10 feet in stature. The following list of men whose real height is well known shows that it is possible for individuals to go far beyond the average height of the human species, which is 65 inches.

Magrath, bishop Berkeley's giant, ninety-two inches; Patrick Cotter (1761-1804), or O'Brien, 90 inches; Charles Byrne, Irish giant, 100 inches; Topinard's Kalmuck, 100 inches; Winkel-mater, Austrian (died 1887) 108 inches; Topinard's Finlander, 112 inches.

Piano manufacturers are the largest users of ivory. Secured only from elephants, 300,000 pounds are imported into the United States annually.

WHY ALL THE bitter, bitey CIGARS?

These bitter, bitey, raspy cigars are found in all shapes—all sizes—all prices. They cause smokers to keep on shifting from brand to brand—and throw away millions of cigars half smoked.

What's at the root of all this waste of money and loss of cigar enjoyment?

HERE'S THE REAL ANSWER

Every leaf of cigar tobacco contains certain harsh, bitter elements. These must be taken out if a cigar is to be truly mild, mellow and full of real tobacco taste.

Ordinary curing methods don't and can't take them out. The result is only what you could expect... too many cigars with a bitter, bitey, raspy taste that makes them unpleasant to smoke.

WHY PHILLIES ARE MILD, MELLOW

Recognizing this condition—Bayuk invented a process that removes this rawness, harshness and bitterness from cigar tobacco, and also mellows and improves the real tobacco flavor. It is used exclusively by Bayuk.

That's why PHILLIES gives you such a mild, smooth, satisfying smoke from end to end. No harshness—no bitter-

"Texas Jack" Now at Forsyth Park Zoo

Visitors at Forsyth Park the past few days have been inquiring where they could find "Texas Jack" the horned toad presented to the city zoo by Mayor C. J. Heise. Texas Jack was expected to become a resident of the zoo on Memorial Day, but it was found that it would be necessary to build a special cage to hold him.

That was why the horned toad was not on view at the park. He was taken back to the Municipal Barn until the carpenter could make his special cage in which he will spend the summer months. The cage has now been built and the horned toad will be glad to welcome callers at the zoo.

The horned toad was sent to Mayor Heise from mail from Dallas, Texas, by the committee arranging for the Texas Centennial.

Forster's Condition Reported as Serious

The condition of James H. Forster of 203 Hurley Avenue, was reported as still very serious at the Kingston Hospital. He was badly burned about the lower part of his body late Tuesday afternoon when the gasoline tank on his truck exploded at the stone quarry owned by Richard F. Dunn at Sawkill.

Forster was just stepping into the cab of the truck when the gas tank suddenly exploded. He was shown

Mr. Dunn, who was standing nearby, rushed to Forster, pushed him to the ground and removed his clothing. Dunn was burned slightly about both hands.

The cause of the explosion was not ascertained.
